51 SHOTS FIRED DURING THE FIGHT

Identified as Country Store Clerk From Hayti, Mo., Who Came Here Recently and Was Unemployed.

A prank-making 11 victims of a holdup drink sodas—resulted in the killing of Ernest Fields, 28 years old, a former soda dispenser who turned robber and was cornered by police last night in a hallway adjoining Temple Shaare Smith, Lindell boulevard and Vandeventer avenue, after he had held up a drug store across the boulevard.

If the robber had hurried from the holdup scene he doubtless would have escaped. But he lingered several minutes to have his joke, and then tried to outshoot four policemen who had been summoned while he dallied. Fifty-one shots were fired in the ensuing fight, three hitting and killing Fields, the remainder wounding the body was not identified until today.

Came From Hayti, Mo. Fields, known familiarly as "Fat," had the reputation of being a practical joker, even when employed as soda dispenser and clerk in his father's store at Hayti, Mo. His parents did not approve of his gambling and drinking habits, and he came to St. Louis three months ago. Until Christmas he was employed as a chain store clerk, but he was discharged by a previous marriage at 1125 West Pine boulevard.

Wearing a red wig and twirling a pearl-handled revolver, he entered the drug store in the Kenrick Square Apartments, 2853 Lindell, at 11:25 o'clock. "Well, I guess you know what this is a stickup," was his nonchalant greeting to the 11 customers and employees in the store. "Forces Victims to Sit Down." "No don't stick up your hands—down in the booths," Fields ordered behind the counters.

Fields helped himself to the contents of two cash drawers and a safe, putting $26.20 into a paper bag he picked up. When he examined the drawers in making the robbery, Sidney Spidoch, proprietor, ordered an order to open the booth. Fields waved a dollar bill pointed to the safe. Spidoch understood and obeyed.

EXPERTS FIND ALL HEARST MEXICAN 'DOCUMENTS' FAKE

Lurid Conspiracies, Secret Treaty, Red Plots and Bribe for Senators, Are Fabrications.

'CODE' MESSAGES
MERE HOCUS POCUS
Navy Investigators and Man Formerly With Embassy in Mexico City Testify Before Senators.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The exposure of William Randolph Hearst's Mexican "documents" as forgeries, fakes and fabrications became final and complete today. Not a shred of genuineness remained to the numerous papers which a few months ago were being reproduced in Hearst's 26 newspapers under "sacred" headlines as "official documents" obtained from the "secret files" of the Mexican Government.

Two Government handwriting experts, to whom the "documents" were submitted by the Senate committee investigating them, reported today that every one of the signatures purporting to be that of President Calles of Mexico were unquestionably forgeries, and that those attributed to Controller-General de Oca of Mexico were "mere childish scribbles" which could not even be identified by the name of serious forgeries.

One of the experts summed up the entire situation very neatly by saying: "Whoever accepted these documents as genuine certainly must have been in a receptive mood."

Among the Hearst "documents" were seven which appeared to be in code but which were accompanied by what purported to be translations. These were represented by the Hearst papers as being "highly confidential" communications between President Calles and the Mexican Consul General, Elias, at New York.

Purported Code Translations.
Lieutenant-Commander A. D. Struble, head of the code and signal section of the navy, testified before the committee today that the seven alleged "code" messages were a mere hocus pocus of words and didn't mean anything. He declared that there was no relation whatever between the "code" messages and the purported translations of them.

Examination of the bogus "code" showed, he said, that it had been written by a person, who simply sat down at a typewriter and struck letters at random, confining the strokes almost entirely to eight letters at the upper left-hand corner of the keyboard. It was an obvious piece of forgery.

Peddler Known to Lane.
Arthur B. Lane, who was first secretary of the American Embassy in Mexico City during the time that the "documents" were obtained by John P. Hearst's Mexico City correspondent, testified that Miguel Avila, the little Mexican-Italian half-breed, from whom Page got them, was well known in Mexico as a peddler of documents and had on more than one occasion offered to sell alleged "official papers" to the American Embassy. Lane said no purchases were made.

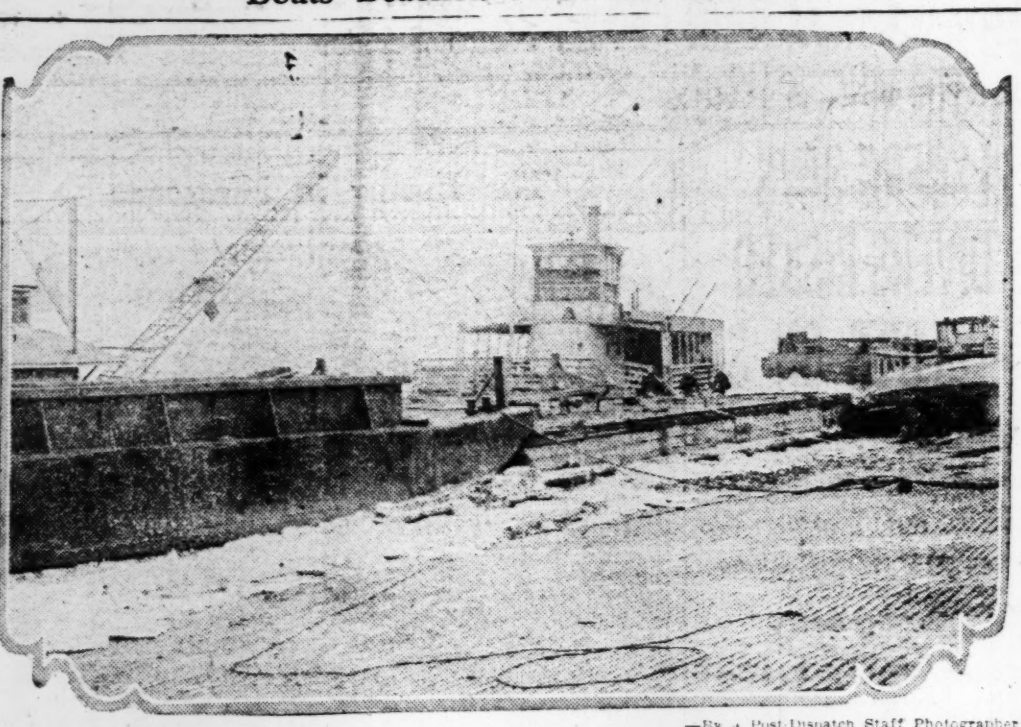

Early in 1927, Lane related, Avila came to him with a copy of what appeared to be a message from President Calles to the governor of the state of Mexico, violating the American Ambassador Sheffield. Avila offered to obtain the original for 200 pesos (about $100), Lane said. Page knew of Avila's offer and discussed it with Lane, the latter testified.

Again, Lane continued, Avila offered to obtain, for a sum of money, an "official document" which showed President Calles directing all Mexican diplomatic agents in Europe to conduct a campaign of propaganda against "the imperialistic policy" of the United States. Because of the widespread knowledge that such "documents" were frequently offered for sale, Sheffield had given instructions to the embassy staff never to purchase any of them, Lane said. He admitted, however, that Avila frequently gave information to the embassy about affairs in Mexico, and that the embassy once obtained his release from prison, where he was being held incommunicado by the Mexican secret police.

Page's Front Crumpled.
Page and Avila sat close together at one side of the long committee room, and their faces presented curious contrasts as the discrediting of their precious "documents" proceeded. Page frequently turned red, and seemed to maintain his front with difficulty. The pudgy, swarthy little half-breed did not flicker an eye.

Not even during the testimony, which had a tendency to connect Avila directly with the forging of the "documents" did he change expression. His testimony was that of Commander Carlos V. Cusachs, who has been acting as Spanish interpreter for the committee. Formerly he taught Spanish at Harvard, Louisiana University and the United States Naval Academy.

All the documents, of course, are in Spanish. "I have made a very thorough and careful study of these documents," he said. "There are so many mistakes in them that I shall not attempt to enumerate them. There are more than 200 instances of accents omitted. There are more than 100 instances of accents misplaced. There are 88 misspelled words. One word which properly carries no accent is accented in every one of these papers."

"In a paper which pretends to be a message from Consul-General Elias to President Calles, the name of Mexican Ambassador Tellez is misspelled and not accented properly. In this connection, I might remind the committee that Ambassador Tellez is Mr. Elias' direct superior and has been for years."

"Final Stroke of Ignorance."
Describing what he vigorously termed "the final stroke of ignorance," Commander Cusachs pointed out that 29 of the 71 Hearst "documents" bear the stamp of the diplomatic pouch. The correct Spanish phrase for diplomatic pouch is "bolsa diplomática." As stamped on the "documents" it appeared "bolsa diplomatica." It was just as flagrant a piece of misspelling as if the English word "valley" were spelled "ball." Cusachs said.

This made the members of the committee exchange significant glances. Page had precluded Cusachs on the stand and while he was being asked to spell the Spanish phrase for diplomatic pouch. He had spelled it "bolsa diplomatica."

Commander Cusachs pointed out that, in all the documents, the Spanish word "usted," meaning "you," had been abbreviated to "ud," and that, instead of the abbreviation being followed by a period, it was followed in every case by a comma.

"Have you ever seen this mistake made before?" asked Senator Reed. "Only once. That was when I took Mr. Avila into your office and dictated to him certain letters in Spanish to obtain specimens of his typing. In every instance he abbreviated the word 'usted,' which in itself is incorrect practice, and in every instance he abbreviated it with a comma instead of period."

"Composed by Two Men."
"What would you say about the man who composed these forgeries?" asked Senator Robinson. "They were composed by at least two men," was the reply. "The man who dictated them was an intelligent, educated man. The language used is good Spanish, and in most instances shows a familiarity with the Mexican official documents. The man who did the typing was both uneducated and illiterate."

After the hearing, Commander Cusachs, who gave typing tests to Page as well as Avila, told the writer that he found no mistakes in Page's Spanish, adding that "it was perfect."

"Avila is an illiterate man," he added. "He has only the most primitive grasp of writing Spanish."

Page underwent a savage grilling on the subject of his earlier venture into the "document" game, when, as a special correspondent of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, he had offered what purported to be a copy of an improper letter from Senator La Follette to President Calles. Ledger executives have told him they examined the paper, decided it was a fake and declined to print it.

"Well, why didn't you at least go and give him a piece of your mind?" Johnson inquired. "I didn't care to make an enemy in Mexico."

"Did you get that paper from Avila?" Reed shot back. "No, sir, I didn't."

Reed announced that the committee had obtained the services of two handwriting experts, J. H. Taylor, chief of the identification section of the navy, and Bert C. Farrar, examiner of questioned documents for the Treasury Department. He filed Taylor's report, which delivered the unqualified opinion that none of the signatures attributed to President Calles and to Controller-General de Oca in the Hearst "documents" were genuine.

"Gambling and vice conditions in East St. Louis are rotten," Commissioner Lauman charged at a meeting of the City Council of East St. Louis today. "The gambling interests must be protected or they could not exist."

Lauman, who has supervision of public health, amplifying his charges, said a notorious East St. Louis gambler boasted to Assistant State's Attorney Roberts about three weeks ago that he had "everything fixed from top to bottom" and told Roberts defiantly "you can't touch me."

Commissioner Lauman spoke while the Council was discussing providing a meeting place for a special grand jury summoned by City Judges Cook and Borders to convene sometime this month. This is the first grand jury summoned in East St. Louis proper in 10 years. It has power to investigate vice and gambling.

way without orders. He rushed from the cabin in time to see the rest of the Rupprecht flotilla—sand-digger, barges and landing stages—pulled from anchorage by the river as easily as a child pulls a toy sailboat with a string.

"Jump off and hitch 'er, John!" he called to his chief engineer, John Haverstock. Haverstock climbed the Rupprecht's rail, jumped to a barge with a two-inch cable in his hand, and floundered his way to shore. Zeller paid out the cable and Haverstock dragged it to the shore, where he and his rings half way up the cobblestone slope. He ran the cable through the ring and hitched it, sailor-fashion.

The two-inch cable ran taut and then snapped, while Haverstock feverishly made a second hitch. Five times, running from one hitch-ring to another, Haverstock fastened the Rupprecht to shore. And each time the river, with its Herculean pull, broke the cable in two.

Meanwhile Capt. Samuel Hinderberger of the Julius Walsh was having his troubles with the big boat. The Rupprecht, in veering from a snapped cable, jammed the rear of the Walsh, and the Walsh flotilla—fastened by a steel chain, a steel cable and four inch-and-one-half rope cables—became part of the field of moving ice.

The Walsh broke free as if she hadn't been moored at all. For an hour air was blown into the S-4, Ellsberg continued, and a first the air remained down. Then bubbles began to come up, and at last as much air was coming up as was going down. It was apparent that a ballast tank or an air line had been ruptured.

Diver Rescued From Wreckage.
Rescuers were compelled to abandon their first plan and to concentrate on attempts to get air to the six men in the forward torpedo room. Diver Michaels volunteered to descend, to try to make connection with the compartment salvage system on the S-4 so that air could be forced in to keep the men alive pending raising operations. The witness told how Michaels became entangled in the wreckage from the Paulding, strewn on the deck of the S-4, and was finally rescued by the veteran diver, Eadie.

When Michaels was brought to the surface he was unconscious and "frozen stiff." It was necessary to cut his diving suit off to get him out of it. Divers Carr and Eadie worked over him from 11:30 p. m. to 3:30 a. m. in the decompression chamber of the Falcon before he regained consciousness.

"It was well known to the officers that diving should not have been attempted under the conditions," Ellsberg said. "Now that they had practically lost one of their best divers and conditions were growing steadily worse, it became apparent that nothing more could be attempted immediately."

Believed Rooms Were Flooded.
"The best estimate of the situation we could make was that we had a flooded battery room and control room, and probably an engine and motor room, either of which were considerably flooded and with enough dead weight to make it difficult to bring up that part of the ship. We already knew definitely that there was 18 inches of water in the torpedo room."

"Even if the after-compartments were dry when the S-4 went down, it was not possible to keep them dry because a large number of electric cables, shafts, etc., ran through the engine and motor room bulkheads."

Ellsberg Tells of S-4 Salvage Work

Service Medal in recognition of his work.
Ellsberg said no safety appliances could be attached to a submarine which would do the crew much good, unless they were assisted by surface vessels. Such appliances could only be used with great risk to the submarine crew. Favorable diving weather was almost essential to successful salvage operations.

Diver Treated for 'Bends.'
The witness said that after reading in the newspapers Sunday, Dec. 15, of the S-4 disaster he offered his services to the Navy and was ordered to Provincetown. He reached the mine sweeper Falcon, base of salvage operations, just as Diver Michaels was being treated for "bends" after being trapped for more than three hours on the deck of the S-4.

The witness said on Monday morning the weather forced divers to wait until Tuesday afternoon, when it steamed into the harbor to transfer some of its crowded personnel to the submarine Tender Bushnell, later returning to the ship. He remained at the scene of the wreck until Tuesday afternoon, when it steamed into the harbor to transfer some of its crowded personnel to the submarine Tender Bushnell, later returning to the ship. He remained at the scene of the wreck until Tuesday afternoon, when it steamed into the harbor to transfer some of its crowded personnel to the submarine Tender Bushnell, later returning to the ship.

"Personally, I did not think the vessel should have remained out," the witness said. "Diving was impossible and living conditions on the Falcon were poor. I think the divers should have been allowed to live under the best possible conditions because of the nature of their work. The weather on Tuesday was hopeless for submarine operations."

Early Salvage Efforts.
Reviewing the early salvage efforts, Ellsberg said that Diver Eadie, the first man to go down to the wreck on Dec. 18, reported tappings from the torpedo room but no sound amidships or aft. No air was leaking from the after compartments. The witness said that the men in the various compartments aft were not necessarily dead, but that living conditions there were not as good as in the torpedo room, which had at least four bunks, with blankets, and any other survivors may have been unconscious.

The Falcon's first plan was to blow the S-4 out of the S-4's ballast tanks by way of the salvage air line. This might lighten the hull enough to offset the water in the battery room, punctured in the collision, and cause the ship to come up. Diver Carr, about 2 p. m. Sunday, attached the air hose to the ballast tanks.

The Falcon had to move away a short distance because of the danger of the S-4 coming up suddenly under her after the ballast tanks were emptied. For an hour air was blown into the S-4, Ellsberg continued, and a first the air remained down. Then bubbles began to come up, and at last as much air was coming up as was going down. It was apparent that a ballast tank or an air line had been ruptured.

Coast Guard Chief Testifies.
The man in charge of Coast Guard destroyers off Provincetown was unaware that submarines moved into Provincetown while submerged. Testimony to that effect was given yesterday by Commander Reinberg to the court.

Reinberg is in charge of the third Coast Guard Destroyer Division, of which the Destroyer Paulding, which rammed the S-4, was a unit.

Reinberg testified the mission of the Paulding off Provincetown was to search for "the most astute enemy we have in these waters."

untested to descend, to try to make connection with the compartment salvage system on the S-4 so that air could be forced in to keep the men alive pending raising operations. "Even if the after-compartments were dry when the S-4 went down, it was not possible to keep them dry because a large number of electric cables, shafts, etc., ran through the engine and motor room bulkheads."

"Our only hope then was that, if when diving could be resumed, we get air tubes and other things to the men in the bow."

Michaels' attempt to attach an air hose to the compartment salvage system was in vain, the witness said, because messages from the imprisoned men said that water had come through when they opened the valve inside, indicating that the line was broken or damaged.

Plans to Send Down Food.
Ellsberg said plans to furnish air to the torpedo room included boring a hole through the submarine's hull for an air line and attaching an air hose to the S-4 listening device. Sealed water-tight rubber sleeves, containing food, dry clothing, flashlights, water and chemicals for air purification, were prepared. These to be passed by divers through a torpedo tube, providing that the men inside had strength enough to operate the torpedo tube shutters. It was learned later that the imprisoned men had used the air from one of the torpedo tubes, and the air returned via the air tube from the torpedo room had the distinctive odor of air which had passed through a high-pressure charging compressor.

The witness was reluctant to classify one of the duties of the coast guard as the suppression of rum running. Rather, he preferred to refer to it as "the interception of smuggling."

Reinberg said that on the morning of Dec. 17 five destroyers of his division had been ordered out from Boston on a five-day patrol. The area assigned to the Paulding was Massachusetts Bay and the Cape Cod coast. Each of the other vessels had an area twice as large. These assignments to be covered the first day.

Looked for Suspected Ships.
In reply to questions by Commander Leslie E. Bratton, Judge-Advocate, Reinberg said that one of the duties of the coast guard was to look for and identify a list of nearly 500 suspected vessels, the names of which had been furnished to him. Reinberg said he would prefer not to divulge the names of these ships. The Paulding was to watch for one such vessel off Cape Cod.

Commander Bratton, asked whether it was necessary that the Paulding, in carrying out her orders, make 18 knots an hour, he said at the time of the collision. The witness said he thought the destroyer would have to maintain a good speed to cover her area in daylight.

Three Divers Prepared to Resume Salvage Work.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Jan. 6.—After a sudden slackening of the northwest wind, which held up all salvaging operations on the sunken submarine S-4, the U. S. S. Falcon, flagship of the salvage fleet, pulled up her anchor in Provincetown Harbor this afternoon and steamed out to the scene of the disaster.

With the diving wind came a calmer sea, which led Rear Admiral Frank H. Brumby, directing the salvage work, to believe that the diving might be resumed.

Three divers, it was said, were prepared to descend and enter the S-4 engine room as soon as weather conditions permitted.

All of the other vessels in the salvage fleet, however, remained at anchor in the inner harbor.

STATE ATTACKS ALIBI EVIDENCE OF TWO SHELTONS

CASE LIKELY TO GO TO THE JURY TONIGHT

Carl, Alone of Three Brothers Accused of Kinkaid, Ill., Bank Robbery Takes Witness Stand.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

TAYLORVILLE, Mo., Jan. 6.—An alibi set up by Earl and Bernie Shelton, who with their brother Carl will await tonight the verdict of a jury as to their guilt in the robbery of the bank at Kinkaid, was prepared by Carl or by someone who copied his handwriting, a handwriting expert produced by the State testified this afternoon.

The alibi consisted of a blotter page from the East St. Louis police record purporting to show that Earl and Bernie were in jail there Sept. 27, 1924, the day of the bank robbery. J. T. Stockton of Springfield, the handwriting expert, declared that the entries on the blotter were in Carl Shelton's handwriting or in a good forgery of that writing.

The blotter rested at 2:15 p. m. and closing arguments began at once. It was indicated by the Court that a night session would be held to permit the case to go to the jury tonight. Carl Shelton, the only one of the brothers to take the witness stand had testified to an alibi for himself, saying he was in East St. Louis on the day of the robbery.

Earl and Bernie's alibi was supported by three members of the East St. Louis Police Department, who testified the brothers were in the holdover here at the time of the robbery. Sept. 27, 1924. As proof the defense introduced a blotter page from the East St. Louis police record purporting to show Earl and Bernie Shelton duly entered as prisoners for 14 hours.

Sept. 27. Relying on this alibi, Earl and Bernie did not take the stand, having said to do the talking for the defense. Carl Shelton, the only one of the brothers to take the witness stand had testified to an alibi for himself, saying he was in East St. Louis all night of the robbery. He said he knew nothing of the robbery. He said he was in East St. Louis all night of the robbery. He said he knew nothing of the robbery.

The defense rested at completion of Carl Shelton's testimony, and the case was expected to go to the jury late today.

At a night session last night the defense sought to impeach Newman's testimony with testimony of two other convicts at Chester penitentiary who said Newman had tried to get them to join him in testifying against the Sheltons at this trial. The main reliance of the Sheltons, however, is upon their alibi.

Testimony on Police Blotter.
It was while awaiting the arrival of the two convicts, Ray Chapman and Floyd Arns, from the penitentiary, that the East St. Louis detectives were sandwiched in with their blotter record. The page of the blotter, dated Sept. 27, 1924, had been torn out of the bound volume of daily blotters for that year and pasted back in again. It was the only page in the volume that had been so mutilated. The last three names on the blotter for that day were Jim Brown, Long, Jones, and Will Smith and Tom Jones.

Cuba, Mo. The blotter showed that they had been arrested by Patrolmen Grimes and Houser, now dead, and the blotter showed that the three men had been dismissed by order of the Chief of Police, who then was John Barry.

Directly above the names of these three were the names of Bernie and Earl Shelton, booked as suspects, and the blotter showed that they, too, had been released by order of the chief. The blotter showed they had been held 14 hours, from 2:40 a. m., Sept. 27, 1924, which, if true, would have overruled the possibility of their having been in the robbery at Kinkaid, which occurred at 10:15 a. m. of that date.

The handwriting recording the names of the Sheltons and Brown, Smith and Jones, was that of the same person, whoever he was, but differed strikingly from the handwriting of 20 or more other names ahead of them on the sheet. The ink used for the last five names, beginning with the Sheltons, apparently was fresh, while that of preceding names was somewhat faded with age.

State Makes Investigation.
The detectives were questioned at length concerning these entries. They denied knowledge of who had made them.

STATE ATTACKS
ALIBI EVIDENCE OF TWO SHELTONS

CASE LIKELY TO GO TO THE JURY TONIGHT

Carl, Alone of Three Brothers Accused of Kinkaid, Ill., Bank Robbery Takes Witness Stand.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

TAYLORVILLE, Mo., Jan. 6.—An alibi set up by Earl and Bernie Shelton, who with their brother Carl will await tonight the verdict of a jury as to their guilt in the robbery of the bank at Kinkaid, Ill., was prepared by Carl or by someone who copied his handwriting, a handwriting expert produced by the state testified this afternoon.

The alibi consisted of a blotter page from the East St. Louis police record purporting to show that Earl and Bernie were in jail there Sept. 27, 1924, the day of the bank robbery.

Carl, alone of the three brothers, testified that he was in the jail at the time of the robbery, Sept. 27, 1924. As proof the defense introduced a blotter page from the East St. Louis police record purporting to show Earl and Bernie Shelton were in jail there Sept. 27, 1924.

But on cross-examination by John Hogan, who is assisting the state's attorney, Cashell faltered. While he vividly recalled the arrest of the Sheltons and a visit to them in their cell that night, he could not recall the date he had arrested any man in his entire career.

Includes Carl in Alibi.
Detective Sergeant F. Combs, on the East St. Louis force 14 years, also testified he saw Bernie and Earl Shelton in jail and their names on the blotter.

Police Lieutenant Thomas P. O'Brien testified he had undergone a surgical operation in the summer of 1924 and recalled that Earl and Bernie Shelton were held in the East St. Louis jail for 14 hours on Sept. 27, 1924.

Neither O'Brien nor the others could tell who looked the Sheltons. All declared they had not seen the blotter from that date until it was placed before them in court.

The state has failed on one important point. No witness could positively identify either Carl, Earl or Bernie Shelton as one of the robbers. But Newman and Summers swore that they heard the Sheltons plan the robbery and discussed it with them afterward.

FIREMEN CLIMB
240 FEET TO PUT OUT $300 BLAZE

Four, Weighted Down With Coats, Boots and Water Cans, Use Stairs in Mo. Pac. Building.

Weighted down by unwieldy boots, long coats and heavy hats, 15 firemen last night stumbled on the darkened stairway of the new Missouri Pacific Building, under construction at Thirteenth and Olive streets, to fight a spectacular but small fire on the topmost floors.

It was a 23-floor climb, of 240 feet, to the top, made additionally difficult by the fact that the fire fighters carried lanterns, axes and heavy cans of water. Later a hose line was brought up and, under its stream, the flames, which had been burning among tarpaulins, straw and wooden concrete forms, quickly died away.

A passerby saw the flames and turned in a "still" alarm, which was answered by Engine Company No. 14. The seven members of the company found the building was threatened with the same dangerous situation as resulted when a fire burned unextinguished for hours in the upper floors of the 35-story Hotel Nederland in New York City on April 14 last.

Four Climbed to Top.
"We saw we had to get up and handle the fire before it began to work down the building," Capt. Richard Knox of Company No. 14 said today. "We took three of our men got the pumper ready, the other four of us started up the stairs, lugging cans of water which we sometimes use on small fires."

"We weren't dressed for that kind of work and it got pretty punishing after the first 10 stories. Finally we reached the twenty-third floor. The fire was burning fiercely in the tarpaulins and straw and the wind was whipping sparks all around."

"I tried to signal with my flashlight to the men in the street, so that they would pull the hook and get the hose up to the fire. I washed my light toward the fire alarm office in the City Hall, giving No. 52, which was that of the nearest box."

Other Companies Arrive.
Within a few minutes Engine Companies 24, 40 and 41 were there and men were coming up the stairs. No. 12 truck had come a few seconds after we got there. Finally we found a temporary elevator and ran it to the top, bringing up ropes. We let these down to the street and dragged up a light hose line. After that the fire didn't last long."

However, nearly 45 minutes elapsed from the time the fire was discovered till it was extinguished. The blaze furnished a striking spectacle to the small crowd gathered at nearby street crossings to watch it. The burning tarpaulin flapped brilliantly under a brisk breeze, throwing off showers of sparks down to the street, while the lower stories, shadowed from the fire's red gleam by the set-back construction of the building, shone whitely in the moonlight.

Flames Seen for Miles.
Now and then spectators could catch the flash of an electric lantern in a window or against a wall as the firemen toiled upward.

Because of the comparative clearness of the night and the height of the fire, the flames could be seen for miles, but the blaze attracted only a comparatively few spectators from the downtown district. It had been extinguished within 45 minutes after the first alarm was turned in at 9:15 o'clock, the trip up the stairs and the work of getting a hose line to the upper stories having taken more time than the actual fight against the flames.

The damage, confined to concrete forms and tarpaulins, was estimated at $300. The firemen said the blaze was started by a coal from a "salamander" heater used to prevent the new concrete work from freezing.

SALESMAN SAYS HE LOST RING WORTH $9000 AT POKER GAME
Lawrence C. Hevick, an Oklahoma City salesman stopping at Hotel Statler, today reported to the police that he had been swindled out of a 6-carat diamond ring by two chance acquaintances with whom he engaged in an all-night poker game at the hotel ending yesterday morning. Hevick said his ring, which was not insured, was worth $9000.

He related that when he began to lose to the two men, whom he knew as "Leroy" and "Doc," he persuaded "Doc" to cash checks totaling $100. "Doc" agreed to cash them, however, only after Hevick had let him hold his ring as pledge of the checks' worth. After the game broke up at 3:30 o'clock yesterday morning, the three went back to the lobby. Hevick went back to his room for a few minutes and when he returned his erstwhile friends had gone, taking the ring.

SMITH UNLIKELY TO REPRIEVE GRAY
AND MRS. SNYDER

Plea for 30-Day Stay Based on Psychosis Test Rejected by Governor at Hearing.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 6.—Lawyers for Mrs. Ruth Snyder and Judd Gray pleaded with Gov. Smith yesterday for a 30-day reprieve from their death sentences, imposed for killing Mrs. Snyder's husband, Albert Snyder, last March.

If there is any reading of a man's mind, the pleas failed, although the Governor will not give his decision until next week. Execution is set for next Thursday.

Half an hour after the Snyder-Gray hearing was over and the mothers of Gray and Mrs. Snyder had been led out of the room where the proceedings were held, Gov. Smith announced his refusal of clemency to another man condemned for murder, Charles Doran, who killed a storekeeper in a robbery. Doran was executed last night.

The Governor's chamber, where the Snyder-Gray hearing opened shortly after noon, was filled with more than 200 persons. The whole action narrowed to a contest among four men, Gov. Smith, Prosecutor Newcomb of Queens, former Judge Millard appearing on his own account for Gray and former Judge Edgar P. Hazleton representing Mrs. Snyder.

Plea Based on Psychosis.
Hazleton pleaded Freudian psychology and the barbarism of capital punishment. Millard pleaded in a moving fashion for understanding and the mercy of clemency. Newcomb pleaded the law and its just administration to the death. And Gov. Smith showed that he was on the side of the law.

Hazleton quoted Sigmund Freud and St. Paul and each time he was routed by Gov. Smith. When he began talking about Mrs. Snyder having a psychosis and about the new psychology, the Governor cut him off with an upraised hand.

"Now listen," said the Governor, "this psychosis doesn't enter into my mind. I'm not going to be concerned about psychosis. And while you're talking about the psychological background of this crime, don't forget there's a background to me also. I mean my oath of office. Here's the state's attorney. (He tapped the penal code to which he had been referring to from time to time.) 'I swore before God to support these statutes. That's my background. So keep out all this other stuff.'"

Counsel Quotes St. Paul.
"Ah yes!" Hazleton leaned forward—"but your Excellency will remember St. Paul said, 'The letter of the law killeth, the spirit of the law giveth life.'"

The Governor retorted: "I know, but the Supreme Court of this State is different and thus a later pronouncement than St. Paul's."

The suddenness and tone of his reply broke the tension of the room. The listeners broke into a laugh.

Hazleton, recovering, replied: "That's an expression. What St. Paul said is a cardinal rule of constructive legal interpretation."

Gov. Smith, looking from one face to another, said: "Well, if there's nothing more, the hearing is over."

The attorney, sassed forward to shake his hand. He spoke briefly to them and then walked out into his private chamber.

threatening to shoot if they did. The patrolmen drew their weapons and shots were exchanged.

Reinforcements arrived in the persons of Patrolmen Lester Trelford and William Drees, who were a block north of the store when Dr. Price ran into them.

Still exchanging shots with the police, Fields ran south, across Kenrick Square, a triangular parkway, and took refuge in a hallway east of Temple Square, at the southeast corner of Lindell and Vandeventer. He was cornered.

Officers Toth and Trelford guarded the front; Guire and Drees went to the rear of the hallway.

The robber had limped as if wounded, but he was full of fight and profanity. "I dare you to come here," he challenged the policemen, with oaths and Office Toth replied, "Never mind, we'll get you." The firing continued.

Officer Trelford directed the rays of a flashlight on the robber, who was crouched beside the synagogue. Toth aimed at the robbers' head and fired. Trelford also fired. The robber slumped to the ground, and died. A bullet had entered his right temple, emerging at the left. Two bullets had entered the groin.

The four policemen had fired 23 shots. All four are young men, and only one has been on the force more than two years.

The robber's body was taken to the morgue, where it remained until identified today as that of Fields by a friend, Glen G. Shockley, 2357 Delmar boulevard, who said Fields visited him last night, departing at 10:50 with a remark that he was going home.

MOTORMAN HIT BY AUTO
J. W. Stallings Was Crossing Olive Street to Get Fused.

When a motorman of an east-bound Olive street car was struck by an automobile as he was crossing Olive street between Compton and Leonard avenues in search of a fuse shortly before 8 a. m. today, street cars carrying hundreds of persons to work were tied up 15 minutes before another motorman arrived to replace the injured man.

The motorman was John W. Stallings. A fuse blew out and his car stalled. As he started across the street to get a fuse from a west-bound street car, he was hit by an automobile eastbound along the unused tracks in center of Olive street. He was not seriously injured. The motorist, E. Howman of 4146 Maryland avenue, took him to a physician's office.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Declaring that most of the prohibition agents have flunked in their examination, Commissioner Doran said today that the enforcement bureau would lose some of its best men unless the requirements of the Civil Service Commission were modified.

In addition to the agents, administrators in St. Louis, Savannah, Ga., Fort Worth, Tex., Los Angeles, Cal. and San Francisco have failed to meet the Civil Service requirements as provided under the law enacted by the last Congress.

Commissioner Doran has requested the commission to give the men another trial but has not yet heard whether his request will be granted. One administrator complained to Doran that he needed men who could break up

HICKMAN OFFERS NEW VERSION OF PLEA OF INSANITY

Pleads Not Guilty to Murder of Druggist in Holdup
Because He Was Not Sane.

WILL TEST NEW CALIFORNIA LAW

Welby Hunt, His Accomplice in Second Slaying, Likely to Take the Stand Against Him.By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 6. — A complete test of California's new laws governing insanity as a defense in criminal cases apparently will be involved in the trials of William Edward Hickman on the two murder indictments which he faces.The 19-year-old youth a few days ago pleaded "not guilty by reason of insanity" to charges of kidnaping and murdering 12-year-old Marian Parker, daughter of a Los Angeles bank officer. Yesterday within a few hours of his indictment together with his 16-year-old accomplice, Welby Hunt, for the murder of C. Ivy Thoms, in a drug store holdup, he entered the alternative plea of the new and little tested California law—
"not guilty and not guilty by reason of insanity."First Test of New Law.
Hickman's plea being the first case in Los Angeles County under the new law, court attendants were confused by the new plea and it first was reported as the same as that entered to the Marian Parker murder charge. The confusion was increased by the fact that on his arraignment Hickman first started to state his plea. When the defendant himself became involved in the legal phraseology, his attorney stepped forward and asked the court to permit him to plead for his client.The difficulty was straightened out when Richard Cantillon, Hickman's Los Angeles attorney, re-stated for newspapermen the plea entered.In the Parker case Hickman legally admitted his guilt by the plea he made and his trial, set for Jan.
25, will be a sanity hearing only.
On the Thoms murder indictment he first will be tried to determine his guilt and if found guilty will be given a sanity trial to determine punishment.Although Hickman's trial in the Thoms case was set for Feb. 1, attorneys indicated that a long hearing in the Parker case might cause a postponement.
Hunt May Testify Against Hickman
With the attorney for Hunt reiterating that his client would plead guilty to the Thoms murder charges and throw himself on the mercy of the court, court attaches predicted that the trial on the holdup killing would find Hunt testifying against his former accomplice.Despite the fact that the Juvenile Court, to which Hunt's case first was referred, sent it back to the Superior Court for handling, due to the seriousness of the charge, the youth's attorney said he would attempt to have Hunt tried in the Juvenile Court. In any event, he said, he would ask a separate trial. California law provides that the death penalty can be inflicted on a person under 18 years of age. Hunt's Superior Court arraignment was set for Jan. 10.Another angle in the investigation of the activities of Hunt, was believed to have been cleared up when the authorities declared they were convinced that A. R.
Driskell, the youth's grandfather, took his own life here last May.Driskell's death was investigated when handwriting experts suggested that purported suicide notes found on the aged man's body might have been forged. The inquiry was ordered when Hickman and Hunt confessed to a series of crimes and it was established that Driskell took a large sum of money from the bank a short time before his death. It was agreed that the suicide notes apparently were genuine.Says Hickman Feigns Insanity.
Hickman spent his time in his cell yesterday muttering and feverishly reading a Bible, his jailers reported.
Frank Dewar, county jailer, said his attention had been directed to the peculiar actions of Hickman in his cell, but the jailer added that it was apparent to him the youth is feigning insanity.Jerome Walsh, Hickman's attorney, visited him in his jail cell and prepared to leave for the East to assemble evidence to support the insanity plea. Hickman formerly lived with his parents and a brother and sister in Kansas City, Mo., and Hartford, Ark.

"EDWARDS ESTATE" ATTORNEY INDICTED

Alabama Grand Jury Charges Joel F. Webb Used Mails to Defraud.

By the Associated Press.
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 6.—Joel F. Webb, Birmingham attorney and counsel for the "Edwards Estate Corporation of Alabama," which he is seeking to obtain a large amount of downtown real estate in New York City said "rightfully to belong to the heirs of Thomas Edwards," was indicted by a Federal grand jury today for using the mails to defraud. The indictment charges, in effect, that Webb organized the corporation with a view to having himself made general counsel to press claims of the Edwards heirs.

The Edwards case has attracted wide attention for several years. Thousands throughout the country are said to have joined the "corporation" on payment of a $5 retainer fee and an additional "genealogy" fee of $5.

The indictment charges that Webb fraudulently mailed general-blank checks seeking heirs of the Edwards estate, and that he had falsely created the impression among the thousands of Edwards "heirs" that administrators actually had been appointed for the estate and that "by reason of such false and fraudulent schemes he personally would receive $100,000."

YOUR ST. LOUIS How Well Do You Know It?

Christian Board of Publication

This institution is the national publishing house of the Disciples of Christ, a communion having a membership of more than 1,500,000 persons, the majority of whom are in the middle states and on the Pacific Coast.

The publishing house has been located in St.
Louis for more than fifty years, and prior to 1910 it was a private enterprise. In that year the property was taken over by a committee authorized at previous general conventions to form a church publishing house.

This transfer and the subsequent expansion of the plant were made possible through a gift of $400,000 from Mr. R. A. Long, of Kansas City. The enterprise was chartered as the Christian Board of Publication, and immediately entered on a program of greatly increased activity.

Twice in ten years the plant has been enlarged. It is now housed in the steel and concrete buildings at Beaumont and Pine Streets, fronting 150 feet on Pine. The equipment comprises the best labor-saving machinery, and the arrangement provide for the safety and comfort of the employees.

So this institution, while serving primarily a certain group, has extended its operation to the extent that it helps to carry with it into all the world the name and fame of St. Louis.

Every day this space will be devoted to some one particular manufacturing plant or industry which is contributing to the dynamic growth of St. Louis.

MRS. HITCHCOCK LEFT ESTATE OF $800,000

Son and Grandchildren Heirs in Will of Civil War Leader's Widow.

The will of Mrs. Mary Collier
Hitchcock, disposing of an estate estimated at $800,000 in value, was filed today. Mrs. Hitchcock, who died New Year's day at her home, 54 Vandeventer place, was 95 years old, and was the widow of Henry Hitchcock, St. Louis Union and anti-slavery leader of Civil War days, and original of the character of Stephen Brice, hero of Winston Churchill's novel, "The Crisis."

Her son, George C. Hitchcock, former Circuit Judge, and his five children, are the chief beneficiaries of the will. There are two charitable bequests, one of $15-000, to be disbursed by Judge Hitchcock in accordance with her wishes as known to him, and an ultimate $10,000 to St. Luke's Hospital, to be paid after the death of the other son, Harry Hitchcock.
Provision is made for Harry Hitchcock, who is an invalid. Two co-trustees, Charles Nagel and Daniel N. Kirby, are to act with Judge Hitchcock, executor. In attending to the support and maintenance of Harry Hitchcock, and are to spend not more than $20-000 a year from the income of the estate for this purpose. They may spend as much as $40,000 of the principal, at their discretion, to purchase or erect a home for him.

There is a $10,000 bequest to Henry Hitchcock, elder son of Judge Hitchcock, mentioned in the will as the namesake of his grandfather. Payment of $1500 a year to Miss Agnes Catherine Sullivan, Mrs. Hitchcock's companion in her later years, also is provided, but the trustees, after Harry Hitchcock's death, may pay Miss Sullivan a lump sum in lieu of a further annuity.

Aside from these provisions and the $15,000 charitable bequest, the estate is left in trust, care of Judge Hitchcock as executor. He is to receive one-third of the estate, and his five children are to receive the remaining two-thirds.

WILL EXTEND SMOKE CAMPAIGN TO HOMES

Commissioner Gordon Says Most of Fall Now Comes from Residence Area.

Smoke abatement efforts of City Smoke Commissioner Gordon's office will be directed chiefly against apartment buildings and residences in future.

Estimating that at least 60 per cent of the city's smoke now comes from the residential districts, Commissioner Gordon yesterday issued warning that residential offenders would be prosecuted under the city smoke ordinance unless they comply with notices from his department to cut down on smoke.

Gordon said the fall that hung over St. Louis Christmas, when industry virtually was at a standstill, was due to fog superinduced by smoke from residences and apartment houses. In the past, he said, smoke abatement activities of the city had been centered on industrial plants. But installation of smokeless boilers, automatic smokers and other smoke-reducing devices and education in proper firing methods have decreased industrial smoke materially. The reduction in the brick and tile industry, he estimated, was 50 per cent.

"Of course," he added, "there will always be some smoke, even from the best equipped plants, due to firing up of cold boilers, break-downs and so on."

Householders, he declared, are losing thousands of dollars annually because they fire furnaces improperly, and at the same time help pollute the atmosphere with smoke and soot.

Because 90 per cent of the complaints his office received last year in residential districts were due to neighborhood animosities, Commissioner Gordon asked residents to settle their quarrels without calling on the smoke abatement workers.

Summing up the work of his department for 1927, Gordon announced 122,123 smoke observations were made in the year as compared with 75,527 in 1926, and 1502 violations of the smoke ordinance were reported as against 2924 in 1926. Complaints increased from 161 in 1926 to 256 last year. In addition, Gordon reported 622 "smokers" had been cleaned up last year, compared with 459 in 1926.

The city smoke office is independent of, but co-operates with, the Citizens' Smoke Abatement League.

WALGREEN DRUG STORES

the Doctor says:

Don't dope YOUR COUGH

It is not wise to use remedies which depend upon "dope" such as narcotics, chloroform, camphor, or tar products. They may stop your cough temporarily by numbing the tissues, as most cough mixtures do, but this is not enough.

The inflamed air passages must be soothed naturally, the germs and mucus loosened and expelled in order to effect a lasting recovery. PERTUSSIN answers Nature to accomplish these results in a remarkably short time—and it is absolutely harmless.

NEW TERM FOR ESCH

ON I. C. C. OPPOSED

Chief Complaint Is That He Changed Position on Great Lakes Coal Rates Case.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Growing dissatisfaction in Congress against a policy of the Interstate Commerce Commission, which, it is contended, operates to the advantage of some sections of the country and to the disadvantage of others will find expression in Senate debate on the re-nomination of John J. Esch, of Wisconsin, as a member of the commission.

Senators from the Southern bituminous coal-producing states are combining with those from the Northwestern states and some of the Republican irregulars in what promises to be a formidable fight against Esch's re-nomination. One of the chief complaints against Esch is that he changed his position in the Great Lakes coal cargo case, permitting the carriers serving the Ohio and Pennsylvania fields to reduce rates to lake ports after the commission once had refused to allow such a reduction.

Senators from the Northwestern and the Southern coal field states are arguing because the commission declined to allow the lines serving the Southern territory to make a voluntary reduction in their rates to lake ports to meet the slash authorized for the roads in the competing field to the north.

DRINK WATER IF KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts if Back Pains or Bladder Is Irritated

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. To help neutralize these irritating acids; to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness. Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

POTTER FAVORS RESERVOIRS FOR FLOOD CONTROL

Head of Mississippi River Commission Questioned by House Committee as to Methods.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Reservoirs on the northwestern tributaries of the Mississippi River would not materially control flood waters in the main stream, in the opinion of Col. Charles L. Potter of St. Louis, president of the Mississippi River Commission. Appearing for the second day before the House Flood Control Committee today, he said: "Reservoirs on the upper valley's tributaries should be seriously investigated but they would not entirely cut off the flood waters from the Mississippi."

Col. Potter had testified yesterday that the considered reservoirs the most feasible method of flood control.

Questioned by Representative Sears of Nebraska, a Republican member of the committee, Potter said the Northwestern reservoir system would be a great benefit for irrigation in the arid West. It also would improve navigation on the Missouri River, he declared, and would probably control floods in local sections.

Irrigation Not Included. He declared that the commission, however, regarded that irrigation in the West was "not properly a phase in formulating an adequate flood control plan for the Mississippi Valley."

Representative Sears said that "the washing away of dirt from the Western farms was just as much of a national calamity as the floods." "We lose $3 for each dollar of loss by the floods," he added.

Potter declared that the swift-flowing streams from the Rocky Mountains did wash away a great deal of soil and reservoirs prevented this erosion. He cited the Colorado River as a stream which carried a heavy amount of soil. Representative Fear of Wisconsin, another Republican committee member, concurred in Potter's views that reservoirs could not be the sole method of controlling the Mississippi.

Criticizes Flood Report. Col. Potter told the committee yesterday that "neither Major-General Jadwin, chief of Army Engineers, nor the commission, had sufficient information at this time to draft a comprehensive flood control plan." He said he had not concurred in either the flood plan

NOW A NEW WAY—

multiplies the result from ordinary milk of magnesia

THE medical profession has long known and endorsed the use of milk of magnesia for ordinary and more serious forms of constipation.

Now one of America's leading pharmaceutical laboratories has perfected an improved form of magnesia.

Mintreated Cream of Magnesia. A pleasant mint flavor in place of that chalky taste of ordinary magnesia—in itself a pleasant change. But the mint addition means far more than that.

It stops sour stomach in 15 minutes. Which is where plain magnesia fails. It merely neutralized stomach acids and cleared the bowels. Failed to relieve the stomach gas.

Mintreated not only clears the intestinal tract of poisons. It expels the gas as well. And the cool of mint is a refreshing change from the flat chalky taste of plain magnesia.

MILLIONAIRE TO WED
ADOPTED DAUGHTER

E. W. Marland of Oklahoma Announces Engagement to Dead Wife's Niece.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—E. W. Marland, millionaire oil man of Ponca City, Ok., yesterday announced his engagement to Miss Lydia Miller Roberts, niece of his late wife, whom he adopted 12 years ago as his daughter when she was 16. The wedding will take place next month at the home of Miss Roberts' parents, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Roberts, in Philadelphia.

Miss Roberts and her brother, George, then 13, niece and nephew of Marland's late wife, were adopted when the first Mrs. Marland was alive. She died in June, 1926, after being an invalid for some time.

It was the devotion of his foster-daughter in the months following his bereavement that convinced him he wanted her for his wife, Marland explained.

Col. Franklin R. Kenney of Los Angeles, his cousin, who is in New York with Marland, said the two were thoroughly congenial and that the difference in their ages was "not extraordinarily great." Marland is 53.

A university graduate at 13 and a practicing lawyer at 21, Marland soon deserted law for oil, and recently his holdings were estimated as worth $55,000,000. He is known here, however, particularly for his venture into art.

Marland and his bride will occupy a fine, castle-like residence which is nearing completion now in the heart of the Marland estate. The old Marland home is to be razed soon and the site used for a museum in memory of the pioneers of Oklahoma.

asserted, "None of the other methods is justified until further study is made."

He also said that Gen. Jadwin had disapproved the commission's proposal that the Federal Government assume the cost of right-of-ways and damages in the construction of diversion channels, floodways and spillways.

The Mississippi River Commission submitted two reports in flood control to Gen. Jadwin, Potter testified. The first, which recommended "a levees only" program, was rejected, he declared, and Jadwin also objected to the commission's estimate of $775,000,000 in its second plan.

Disapproved Floodway.
Potter said he disapproved the proposal in the Jadwin plan for a river bank floodway from Cairo, Ill., to New Madrid, Mo., as "not feasible from a financial or engineering standpoint."

A levee break within 20 miles above New Orleans would engulf that city, Potter said.

"There would be a great loss of life," he declared. "It would be impossible to evacuate the city in a short time as there would be only two railroads available." The 1927 flood was "unusual," he said, adding he did not believe "it was good engineering policy to figure on the basis of worst possible floods" in a future flood program.

The commission, however, favors the continuance of the one-third contributions by local communi-

URGES ST. LOUIS TERMINAL FOR MEXICAN AIRMAIL LINE

President Bixby of Chamber of Commerce Telegraphs Postmaster General.

St. Louis should be the northern terminus of the proposed air mail line to Mexico City, President Bixby of the Chamber of Commerce said in a telegram to Postmaster General New. "We do a very large Mexican business," Bixby said in the message, "and the volume of air mail is dependent on commercial transactions." He asked that a survey be made as to the volume and origin of American commerce with Mexico, as a guide in the routing of the air mail.

Postmaster-General New is quoted in a Washington dispatch as saying that the proposal now being considered is for a line between New Orleans and Brownville, Tex., and that there is no definite arrangement thus far for extending it across the Mexican border.

Coolidge Shakes Hands With 1700 More at Judiciary Reception.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—President Coolidge shook hands with about 1700 persons at the judiciary reception last night.

The bandage that appeared on his right wrist after the New Year's day reception, when 3200 persons grasped the executive's hand, had been removed. There was no indication then whether the ordeal brought a return of the swelling of the wrist that has frequently bothered the President after shaking hands with hundreds.

BROADCASTING MONOPOLY IS FOSTERED

New Jersey Man Attacks Radio Commission's Methods at Senate Hearing.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Charges that the Federal Radio Commission is seeking to create a monopoly of the air through a National Broadcasting Company chain were lodged today before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee by D. W. May, manager of station WTRF at Midland Park, N. J.

The charges were made at hearings on the nomination of Sam Pickard of Kansas; Orestes H. Caldwell of New York, and Harold A. Lafont of Utah, to be members of the commission.

"Caldwell and Pickard have acted unfairly and unjustly," May declared. "They are now threatening to drive out 300 independent broadcasters on Feb. 1 and leave the air in the hands of a monopoly."

He asserted that the commission had reduced the wave length of his station to a point at which it was "of little commercial value."

May took the stand after Pickard had been questioned for more than half an hour. The Kansas commissioner, who is under attack on the ground that he is neither a Democrat nor a resident of the State from which he was appointed, detailed at length the difficulties under which the commission had operated in undertaking to solve the broadcasting problem.

Denies There Is a Monopoly.
"We have to fight the listeners' battle for them," Pickard declared under questioning by Senator Dill (Dem.) of Washington, co-author of the radio act. "They have equipment that cost 20 to 30 times as much as that of the broadcasters."

"As I understand it, then," interposed Senator Wheeler (Dem.) of Montana, "the commission has not paid any attention as to whether there is a monopoly?"

"We have considered that there is no monopoly," Pickard replied. Chairman Watson said the Radio Commission would go out of business on March 15.

"Then what happens?" inquired Senator Pittman (Dem.) of Nevada. "That's on the lap of the gods," returned the chairman.

"Let's enact some legislation so it will not be on the lap of the gods," the Nevada Senator said.

Senator Dill informed the committee he contemplated introducing legislation to continue the life of the commission for one year.

Senator Wheeler persisted in his questions as to whether there is a monopoly, inquiring of Pickard how many stations were owned by the American Telegraph and Telephone Co. and the Radio Corporation of America.

The Commissioner said he did not know. Senator Dill supplemented this answer with the statement that the telephone company had disposed of all of its stations.

Questioned about advertising programs broadcast on the air, Pickard said that he believed that in some instances such programs were to the advantage of the public.

Senator Pittman said that with 10,000,000 receiving sets in the country, a tax on them would not be too high and that this system eventually might prove preferable to that of the broadcasting companies receiving their income from advertising programs.

PEDDLER'S $19,000 ESTATE IS SOUGHT

Court Wants to Know What Became of Vincenzo Lo-Lardo's Savings.

What became of the $19,000 estate of Vincenzo Lo Lardo, Sicilian peddler, will be the subject of inquiry in Probate Court next Friday. Judge Holtkamp today laid the matter over for a week, after Attorney James J. Foley announced that he had been retained to represent John Lo Lardo of 1917 Wash. street, brother of Vincenzo and administrator of the estate. Verne R. C. Lacy previously represented him.

Vincenzo died about three years ago, leaving real estate at 2103 and 2220 Washington boulevard, appraised at $27,000, mortgaged for $8000, besides less than $50 cash and chattels. His brother John, or Giovanni, took out letters of administration of the estate, and his $2000 bond was signed by Pasquale Santino—later killed in gang warfare—and John DeBaltis. Carmela Lo Lardo, Vincenzo's widow, who lives in Sicily, agreed after correspondence to accept $2255 as her share of the estate. Attorney George H. Moore, representing her, asked the Probate Court to order this amount paid. John Lo Lardo, in court today, said to reporters that he had no funds with which to meet the claim of his sister-in-law. He said he understood his brother's real estate had been sold for about $11,000, but that he had left the matter in Attorney Lacy's hands. The court records show that claims have been allowed, but not paid, for an indebtedness of $25,000 to the administrator, John Lo Lardo, on a note; $2000 to Lacy as a fee for legal services, and $700 to the Rev. Caesar Spigardi, besides undertaking bills.

Two bond forfeitures of $10,000 each have been declared against John Lo Lardo in Criminal Court. Lacy, as his attorney, has appealed the forfeitures to the Supreme Court. The bonds were given for Tony Guarino, on two robbery charges, and were accepted by Judge Frey.

Loan Company Owner, Son and Daughter Beaten by Negroes
When They Resist Holdup.

Two men spent an hour eating dinner at 8 o'clock last night in the Arco cafeteria, 409 North Broadway, then walked to the cashier's cage, and helped themselves to $600, one taking the money while his companion, with drawn revolver, commanded the cashier, Miss Tessie Jungling, the proprietor, George Angelich, Mrs. Angelich and three employees who were near.

Four Negroes, one armed, attempted a holdup at the Missouri Loan Co., 2600 Lawton boulevard, but the proprietor, Benjamin Madison, and his son and daughter, Abe, 26, and Esther, offered resistance and were beaten.

MARS QUIETUDE OF LATIN AMERICA

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 6.—El Mercurio says editorially that the sending of reinforcements of United States Marines to Nicaragua "in an epoch of peace and on the eve of the Pan-American conference in Havana" has caused surprise and disillusion, revived painful memories and provoked anew a state of inquietude throughout Latin America.

The editorial characterizes the action a transgression of the universal principles of right, sovereignty and free determination. "This repetition of the episode that seemed definitely buried in the records of international errors is not even presented as a nobly inspired crusade to do good by force of arms, but rather appears as a punishment and menace against a defenseless people that has done nothing other than to exercise in good or bad form its rights and duties."

The newspaper refers to "the honorable traditions set by the Pan-American policy of Root and Wilson" and says "a return to the system of intervention necessarily will bring as a consequence loss of confidence in the United States and stimulation of resistance on the part of public opinion."

El Mercurio thinks the recent incidents in Nicaragua are not sufficiently grave to warrant the measures taken by the United States.

Discussing possible effects on the forthcoming Pan-American conference in the light of recent events in Nicaragua, Imparcial expresses regret that "active intervention" on the part of the United States should take place on the eve of the international meeting and declares that such intervention is an error.

Referring to the recent fighting between American Marines and Gen. Sandino's troops, El Diario says: "These events will strike a discordant note in the hall of the Pan-American conference at Havana."

La Nacion says that "the position of the United States in this emergency disintegrates within the heads of international justice and sound Pan-Americanism."

The Latin-American Union made public a protest against the policy of the United States in Nicaragua, saying that "while dollar diplomacy prizes itself on its electoral impartiality and democratic efficiency, it organizes at the same time a war against a handful of patriots whom it depicts as bandits."

The statement also makes an attack against Pan-Americanism which it describes as false because "when the Colossus of the North needs oil or canals, it resolutely advances, opening a way for itself with its soldiers."

HOW SIX MEN IN S-4 TAPPED FOR HELP UNTIL THE END, DISCLOSED BY SIGNAL LOG

They Pleaded for Haste as Water Rose in Their Compartment and Their Supply of Air Diminished.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—How the six imprisoned men on the sunken submarine S-4 spent their last hours pleading for haste on the part of the Navy crews attempting to rescue them was disclosed yesterday in the log signals which they sent to the men attempting to rescue them, which were made public yesterday afternoon by the Navy Department.

The message log showed how confronted not only with the desperate problem of a diminishing air supply but also with rising water within the torpedo compartment. Among the first messages they sent was one saying that water was 18 inches deep within their narrow chamber, and rising slowly. Navy officers expressed the opinion that this may have been the ultimate cause of their death.

How Signaling Was Begun.
The message log showed how communication was established with the trapped men. As soon as it was determined that there was life on board the submerged vessel a system of signaling by knocks on the hull was devised. They were told to answer "Yes" with three taps, "No" with five and "I don't know" with seven.

The first question sent at 5 p. m., Dec. 18, was:
"Is control room flooded?"
A. Seven taps.
Q. 2. Is water in torpedo room?
A. Three taps (sent at 5:11 p. m.).

Q. 3. Are you in torpedo room?
A. Three taps (sent at 5:30 p. m.).
At 10:15 a. m. from S-8: Cranes are here. Time, 10:30.

The S-8 heard faint indistinct tapping occasionally. The S-8 now tried to call the S-4 intermittently but could get no answer until at 4:05 p. m. Dec. 20, the S-8 sent: Are you all right?
The S-8 then heard three taps very distinctly.

At 4:30 p. m., Dec. 20: Are you all right?
The S-8 was sure that an answer of three taps was heard.
Last Taps Are Heard.
At 6:30 p. m., Dec. 20, the S-8 heard taps at random.

At 6:35 p. m., Dec. 20, the S-8 quit sending so as to listen to determine if taps continued.
At 2 a. m., Dec. 21, called S-4 for 10 minutes, but no answer. Nothing was heard during the remainder of the night.

Wednesday morning, Dec. 21, the Falcon took over the listening, but heard nothing further from the S-4. The bravery of three navy divers who tried to rescue the imprisoned men in the submarine has led to their commanding officer to recommend that they be awarded decorations for heroism.

Rear Admiral Frank H. Drumby, in charge of the salvage and rescue operation, asked Secretary of the Navy Wilbur that a Congressional medal of honor be given Thomas Eadie, chief gunner's mate and that Navy cross be conferred upon William J. Carr and Fred G. Michaels.

Eadie was the first diver to descend to the sunken submarine, and the one who discovered that life existed in its torpedo chamber. Later Michaels was sent down in the face of a rising sea to connect air lines to the submersible's compartments. Making his way about the battered hull of the submarine his lines became fouled.

Eadie then, to quote an official report, "deliberately, knowingly and valiantly took his own life in his hands to respond to the desperate need of a companion diving under wholly adverse conditions." "By his cool calculation and unshaken courage he succeeded in his tremendous task."

Carr and Michaels were recommended for descending into the cold sea for the purpose of attaching air lines, in which they "freely exposed themselves to grave danger."

Other messages followed during the forenoon of Monday, Dec. 19: From S-8: Two floating cranes are on the way now.

BAKER STILL HAS HOPES FOR ROAD BOND AGREEMENT

Governor Says in His Opinion Compromise Remains Possible — To Confer With Commissioners.

AUTOMOBILE CLUB WITHDRAWS SUPPORT

Meeting in St. Louis Proves Futile When Highway Board Refuses to Concede Point.

Gov. Baker in Jefferson City today said that notwithstanding the failure of the State Highway Commission and representatives of the Automobile Club of Missouri yesterday to reconcile their differences over the proposed road bond issue to be submitted at the next election, he would continue his efforts to bring about an agreement.

The commission, rejecting proposals for compromise submitted by the club in its desire for a $120,000,000 bond issue, announced its intention of circulating petitions for submission of a $60,000,000 issue.

The Governor expressed the opinion that an agreement still was possible, and said he would confer with the Commissioners Tuesday when they meet in Jefferson City. The Governor is opposed to attempting to build roads on the pay-as-you-go plan, and said he was eager to avoid having conflicting bond issue proposals on the same ballot.

The commission cannot participate officially in the circulation of the initiative petitions for a constitutional amendment or the campaign in support of the proposal, Chairman Matthews said, and it has not determined whether the petitions or the campaign will be handled.

Roy F. Britton, president of the Automobile Club, expressed the belief, in view of the history of past road propositions, that without the club's assistance the bond issue cannot be carried. Matthews offered no reply to this. Britton pointed out that votes in the municipalities of St. Louis and Kansas City likely would outweigh rural votes and asserted that the commission's plan would not be attractive to the city electorates.

How Two Plans Differ.

The commission's $60,000,000 proposition leaves division of that sum among various purposes subject to the commission's discretion, contains no prohibition of future increase of the gasoline tax, and motor license fees by the Legislature, and contemplates expenditure of part of the money on an additional farm-to-market road system, with a method of distribution among the counties which is still being worked out.

At first, the automobile club proposed a $120,000,000 bond issue, half of which was to go for completion of the present 7540-mile road system and half to be divided among the counties in the proportion of their motor car registration, and with definite prohibition of increase in the gas tax or license fees, except in case of need for interest and principal of bonds or road maintenance purposes.

Club Offers Concessions.
The club yesterday offered to make the following concessions: A $60,000,000 issue, plus authority for an additional $40,000,000 for the farm-to-market system if revenues justified it; prohibition of gas tax or license fee increases for a reasonable time, preferably about 15 years; distribution of excess funds, after completion of the present road system, one-half equally among all the counties and one-half among the counties in proportion to population, in each case, excluding the municipalities of St. Louis and Kansas City; provision for $12,000,000 for widening roads into the two cities.

Insisting that its original proposition was the right one in principle, the commission added that the club was convinced the six-year limitation on gas tax and license fees was an insufficient guarantee that increases would not come later.

Reply of the Commission.

In reply, the commission said formally: "The commission has made a very careful study of the problems involved and has made a conscientious effort to settle the existing differences between the two groups. Its best judgment is that the plan originally proposed by it is the most practical, feasible and desirable plan, and the one adopted to be the best interest of the people."

"Under the commission's proposal, it will be possible to complete the present designated State road system by 1933 and to make roads in full by 1934. In addition to the funds to be applied annually to the completion of the State road system there will be available for

FRANCE ACCEPTS KELLOGG'S PLAN FOR WORLD PEACE

Note to Washington Suggests Treaty for Outlawing of "Aggressive Wars" Only.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—A favorable reply to Secretary of State Kellogg's note to France of Dec. 28 suggesting an international covenant and deploring war as a means of settling international disputes, was received today at the French embassy.

The note will be delivered to the State Department today. The French reply accepts the American proposal that the eventuality of international disputes be settled by arbitration, and that the United States and France alone, be extended to at least the major European countries and as many more as would be willing to subscribe to it.

Foreign Minister Briand suggested in the note, however, that the American proposal be amended to condemn "aggressive war" as a means of national policy rather than mere "war," since the latter would also embrace defense hostilities.

In general, the tone of the reply is favorable and embassy officials expect it to lead rapidly to a final crystallization of international sentiment for the outlawry of war.

Special Cable to the Post Dispatch and New York World.
Copyright, 1928, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Co., Inc., New York.
PARIS, Jan. 6.—More attentive study of the text of Secretary Kellogg's anti-war proposals has created a much more favorable impression on the French Foreign Office and press.

A modified arbitration treaty carrying with it a formal declaration of perpetual amity and peace is now regarded as constituting a war-outlawing pact corresponding with Foreign Minister Briand's own conception. The Foreign Office believes it will be easy to reach an agreement with Washington.

The objections at first raised to the general anti-war treaty are now not considered insurmountable. Briand has elaborated his views at great length in instructions to Ambassador Claudel. Adhesion of other nations to treaty would not necessarily weaken the authority of the League of Nations, officials say.

Moreover, it is thought the United States thus identifying itself with the principle constituting the fundamental basis of the Geneva edifice and aligning itself with European "guardians of peace" would be morally obliged to intervene with league members in any common action decided by the league against an aggressor nation.

However, there is still some opposition to the general treaty idea, even among French Liberals for they are jealous of the league's prerogatives and accuse Washington of a project to torpedo the league. The reservation that American acceptance of an arbitration award must be subject to Senate ratification is hotly attacked.

Smith left last night for Washington, Smith, who was elected from Illinois as Senator, has been refused a seat in the Senate twice because of charges of using the proceeds of a "slush fund" to win his election. He is to appear before the Senatorial "Slush Fund" Committee Saturday.

800 NICARAGUAN CHILDREN SING AT LINDBERGH FETE

30,000 Cheer Flyer on Arrival in Managua From Honduras — Presented With Key to Capital.

LEAVES TOMORROW FOR COSTA RICA

Aviator to Be Dinner Guest
Today of Gen. Chamorro
Who Is Opposed by U. S. for Presidency.

By the Associated Press.
MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 6.—Nicaraguans from peon to President today took delight in honoring Col. Charles A. Lindbergh who landed here yesterday afternoon. Soon after he had seen Lindbergh, President Adolfo Diaz said he "had no idea he would prove to be so young."

A "songsong" was given by 800 school children before the American Legation today in honor of Lindbergh.

The boys and girls assembled on a side street and then marched to the Legation, headed by a band. The girls were dressed in white and blue and carried large bouquets and Nicaraguan flags, while the boys also wore white and blue and badges with the Nicaraguan colors on their coats. The first number on their program was "The Star Spangled Banner."

Thousands of spectators gathered in front of the Legation, where the Colonel appeared on an upper balcony he was given an ovation. He then thanked them in a few words and said that he hoped he could stay longer in Nicaragua next time.

Many aged Nicaraguans shook hands with the flyer and were visibly affected by the meeting. "What a fine looking boy and so young," was the general murmur.

Receives Hearty Reception.
The recent bombing of insurgents by marine corps planes did not dampen the ardor of those who came to honor the "Ambassador of Good Will." All idea of revolution and politics was laid aside and one main item on Lindbergh's program today was a dinner in his honor by Gen. Emiliano Chamorro, whom the United States refused to recognize as a presidential aspirant.

Lindbergh's trip of more than 165 miles from Tegucigalpa, Honduras, was made against a head wind, but the flyer said the headwind did not bother him.

Lindbergh did not follow the airline between the two cities, going instead by way of Leon. He did this in order to avoid passing over the territory where six United States marines were killed in battle against the insurgent Gen. Augusto Sandino.

Before the "Spirit of St. Louis" touched the ground, Lindbergh had learned he was welcome. As he circled about, getting set for a landing, he saw the great air field of more than 100 acres beneath him marked with flags and bannets and beautifully decorated. A huge sign stood out clearly. It read: "Welcome to the Republic of Nicaragua."

Crowd Burst Into Cheers.
The crowd burst into cheers as "The Spirit of St. Louis" appeared. The shout, "There he comes," was picked up by all the small children who scurried about the field or tugged to get away from their parents. Modishly gownned señoritas forgot the dust of the sun-baked field and their fine clothes as they joined in the spirit to be near the plane and when it landed. It landed gracefully.

The Nicaraguan band played the Star-Spangled Banner and as the familiar cry of "Viva Lindbergh" rose, it was evident that another Central American country had taken this tall, smiling youth into its heart. "Vive los Estados Unidos!" they cried as Dr. Dana G. Munro, the American Charge, greeted the flyer and presented him to officials.

Thirty thousand persons crowded the flying field. Policemen and national guardsmen attempted to restrain the surging crowds, but gave up the task.

A silver key to Managua was handed Lindbergh by the Mayor. Children and señoritas threw kisses at him as he sped by automobile direct to the historic Campo de Marte, home of President Diaz. The President and the flyer chatted in English.

Lindbergh's Short Reply.
From the balcony of the congressional hall Jose Andres Urtecho, Minister of Finance and Foreign Affairs, presented the flyer to the people, speaking in Spanish. Lindbergh's brief reply in English was translated by Roscoe H. Hill of the American High Commission.

Lindbergh said, "Ladies and gentlemen, I want to thank you all for the welcome I have received here today."

Lindbergh will leave for San Jose, Costa Rica, tomorrow.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Air Activity On the Pacific Coast.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

REFERRING to your article entitled, "Million Dollar Airport Bond Issue Offers an Opportunity for a Lindbergh Memorial," your statement that the only passenger air-line now operating is between Detroit and Cleveland, is inaccurate. There has been a regular passenger air-line between Seattle and Portland for over a year past, operating in connection with the mail service, with a $12 fare, including taxicab fares at both ends. That is only 24 cents more than the price of the rail and Pullman tickets.

In Seattle, the Boeing Airplane Co. (the parent company of the Boeing Transport Co., having the San Francisco-Chicago air mail contract) for over 10 years has been manufacturing airplanes for the United States Army and Navy. They are now building mail planes with accommodations for 12 passengers intending to put them in service between San Francisco and Chicago in the next six months. The coast is keenly alive to the coming form of transportation.

I am advised that the Great Northern Railroad is seriously considering the purchase of a fleet of passenger airplanes to be operated in connection with the Oriental Limited from Seattle to Chicago. Passengers on this train, arriving in St. Paul at 7:30 a. m. will fly to Chicago to catch the Twentieth Century Limited, leaving Chicago at 12:40 p. m. for New York and arriving there at 9:30 a. m. the next day. The four-hour flight from St. Paul to Chicago, displacing the 12-hour rail trip, will connect up the crack trains of the Great Northern and New York Central and save, for practical purposes, 24 hours in the transcontinental journey. There will be a corresponding reverse service.

The Pennsylvania Railroad is now making investigations for an airplane service as a supplementary method of transportation, which, clearly, it is. The era of air travel is not just coming. It has arrived in Europe, and the new world must follow. St. Louis is by reason of its central geographical position unquestionably the logical place for airplane factories, and by the establishment of a great local airport, with facilities comparable to the famous European air ports will be the radiating center of a vast network of mail, express and passenger planes, annihilating time and space.

As a newcomer to St. Louis, I sincerely trust that it will grasp this magnificent development, meaning so much to the prosperity of the city.

R. C. SAUNDERS.

Question for Mr. Gary.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

When we voted the $60,000,000 road bonds in 1920 Missouri had a revenue of about $2,000,000 a year from license fees. The State now has a revenue of $14,000,000 a year from the gasoline tax and license fees. Why should we be afraid then to vote $120,000,000 in bonds now, with a revenue seven times as great as when we voted $60,000,000? Try that question on Gary.

CONCRETE.

"King of Kings" Dispute.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IN your editorial of Jan. 4 entitled—"The Protest Against the King of Kings," you criticize the St. Louis Council-American Jewish Congress for urging that this film production be withdrawn from circulation. It seems to confuse the issue by injecting into it the question of law and legal rights. The Jewish citizens of America are not attempting to bar the display of this film through the courts or through any governmental agencies. Such efforts would do more harm than good. We appreciate fully the dangers that lurk in every form of official censorship. Our appeal is rather to the unofficial public opinion of the country. We are attempting through the force of moral suasion to convince fair-minded and intelligent men and women that this film tends inevitably to arouse Jew-baiting and Jew-hatred wherever displayed and threatens to nullify the very creditable efforts of noble-minded Protestants, Catholics and Jews towards racial and religious tolerance and understanding.

Such a film is staged for the galleries. It disregards history and tradition; it outrages truth; it craves the spectacular; it commercializes in a tawdry manner the life of that noble personage, Jesus of Nazareth, and hears abuse upon all his co-religionists of that period. It seeks to write another sorrowful page in the tragic story of a martyred people.

All in all, the film has little justification for existence. It should be removed immediately from the screen or treated with contempt by movie patrons.

M. J. SLOVINY.

Pres. St. Louis Council, American Jewish Congress.

More Audacity.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IN his defense of St. Louis artist cars, Mr. Murrin uses the term "audacity." I use it also to say he has audacity to claim that no surface car system between New York and Denver equals the St. Louis system. I claim Milwaukee and also Minneapolis are very far ahead, especially of car 2300 on the Cherokee line.

WILLIAM DORNER.

THE BOTTOM OF THE TEAPOT.

It was a coincidence that within 24 hours after the Teapot Dome oil field was formally restored to the Navy the United States Senate voted to trace the missing profits of the Continental Trading Co. and so go to the bottom of the teapot.

It was not, however, altogether a coincidence that just a few days before the Senate took this action his lawyer in this country announced that H. M. Blackmer, formerly chairman of the board of the Midwest Refining Co., a subsidiary of the Standard Oil of Indiana, who has been for two years "a fugitive from the courts," as the late Chancellor Hadley described him, in the Teapot Dome inquiry, has abandoned this country as his home and will not appear as a witness when the Fall-Sinclair trial is resumed, January 15.

It has been known for some time that the Senate would go to the bottom of the teapot. This is no doubt one reason why Blackmer, who has forfeited $100,000 of his property in the United States to the Government for refusing to answer summons served upon him in France, and James E. O'Neill, president of the Prairie Oil and Gas Co., who has never been subpoenaed, but who told Atlee Pomerene, one of the Government prosecutors in the oil frauds, when they met in Czechoslovakia last summer, that he would voluntarily return for the trial, decided to stay abroad.

Fall leased Teapot Dome to Harry Sinclair, on April 7, 1922. In the following month, the Continental Trading Co., which the Superior Court of Ontario described as "a fake corporation," and of which the United States Supreme Court said that "the disposition of its assets makes it plain that the company was created for some illegitimate purpose," purchased $300,000 worth of Liberty Bonds in New York with profits made in an inside oil deal. The Continental existed only in the office of Henry S. Osler, a Toronto lawyer. Osler appeared at the Dominion Bank's New York office, and took the bonds away, wrapped in brown paper.

Two weeks later, M. T. Everhart, Fall's son-in-law, went to New York, and returned to Pueblo, Colo., with $230,500 in Liberty bonds. With these bonds he paid off the debts of himself and Fall, which totaled $105,500, deposited $70,000 to Fall's bank account, and the remainder to the account of a ranching company which he and Fall owned. Those bonds came out of the $300,000 worth which the Continental had bought in New York, and which Osler had taken away in the brown paper package. It was an era of black satchels and brown paper packages. Corruption was in the saddle, and the tale it left rivals anything in the Arabian Nights.

There are two theories about why the Continental was organized, and why the $3,000,000 fund was accumulated. One is the obvious theory that it was organized to accumulate a huge corruption fund, part to be used in bribing Fall for the Teapot Dome lease, and the remainder to be used for other corrupt purposes. It has even been suggested that from this fund the deficit of the Harding presidential campaign was paid. Our morale was not very high at that time. The second theory is that Sinclair and his confederates rigged up a private deal to divide a $3,000,000 profit among themselves, that Sinclair used a part of his share to bribe Fall, and that the others kept their shares.

There is a feature of this corruption classic that has puzzled the country. It is, indeed, the major mystery. What induced men like Blackmer and O'Neill, and others of their type, all of whom were high-salaried executives in companies like the Standard Oil, to join with Sinclair in organizing the Continental? If they did not know it was a fake company and part of a gigantic swindle, or if their participation in it was in any wise innocent, why then did some of them flee the country when the exposure came, and whom have they protected by staying abroad? It is not customary for successful men of their sort to give up their powerful places and their country without a very good reason.

Perhaps now we shall learn the whole story. It ought to be known, to serve forever as a warning against what Plato termed turning the government over to tradesmen.

THE EPILOGUE.

The epilogue to the astonishing story of Hearst and his Mexican documents is in key with what has gone before. It consists in a formal admission to the Senate committee by Hearst's personal attorney, Mr. de Ford, that the documents are spurious. Curiously enough, Hearst himself brought about this anticlimax by employing Jay Fordyce Wood, a handwriting expert, to examine them. It is Mr. Wood's conclusion, after painstaking study, that the signatures of Calles on 35 letters are unquestionably not genuine.

Thus, by means of Hearst's own employee, the whole ridiculous business fizzles out. Is anyone so naive as to ask why Hearst did not employ Wood to examine the documents before they were published? We think not.

Evidence multiplies that he not only knew they were forgeries from the beginning, but that his agents actually conspired to bring them into being. Hearst did not engage Wood in the first place because he wanted to publish the documents regardless. An old-time Mexican interventionist, he wanted to arouse public hostility to our southern neighbor. He failed miserably and now he recants. Thus ends one of the most disreputable incidents in American journalism.

"HOW SOUR SWEET MUSIC IS."

—Richard II.

But a few years ago the visit of an opera company including some well-known Metropolitan Opera company stars of the caliber of Mme. Sundellus and Mr. Rafael Diaz would have aroused the liveliest anticipations among the music lovers and society of St. Louis; but the recent visit of the opera, "The King of the Henchman," despite a libretto by America's foremost poetess, Edna St. Vincent Millay, and the prestige of a big success at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York last season, drew miserable houses.

In place of the eager, enthusiastic faces leaning far over the balcony rail and cheering the beloved Melba of past years, we had empty seats. If there was more than one tail coat and top hat among the surprisingly large number of gentry who attended the first performance, we failed to observe it. Opera, save for New York, is dead. For one person who talked Thursday morning of the company at the Odeon there must have been 100 to praise the $60,000 radio concert of the night before. This is a riotous, swift-moving age. Our grandmothers had nothing but opera to go to. We stay at home and have Will Rogers, Paul White, man and Al Jolson come to us. Are we to be blamed?

TRY AGAIN!

Regret will be felt everywhere in Missouri at the failure of the State Highway Commission and the Automobile Club to reach an agreement in Thursday's conferences on a plan for the completion of the State road system. The discussions were, however, conducted in good spirit.

The Automobile Club, with its large membership and the great prestige it enjoys by reason of the vital service it rendered in the passage of the original $60,000,000 bond issue and the adoption of "Number 5," which levied the gasoline tax and increased the registration fee, is a factor whose support seems to us essential in any road-plan referendum. The club has declared, in a prepared statement, that it cannot support the commission's plan; neither will it oppose it; it will remain neutral. Neutrality, we fear, might be fatal. We believe the commission shares that anxiety. In the circumstances, then, the manifest duty of both the commission and the club is to continue to strive for an acceptable compromise.

It is obvious, of course, that the Automobile Club is on safe and strategic ground when it insists on a provision that there shall be no increase in the gasoline tax or the registration fee. It has receded from its original demand for a permanent prohibition of tax increase and will accept a restriction for a period of 15 years. The commission is willing to pledge no tax increase for six years. What about a 10-year provision? Would a trial of that length vindicate the club's contention that present and prospective revenues are sufficient to carry on the construction and maintenance of our highway system without an increase in taxes?

As regards the amount of the bond issue, the commission which three weeks ago had put its maximum at $60,000,000, was willing on Thursday to go as high as $75,000,000, issuance of the additional $15,000,000 to be optional with the commission, its judgment to be determined by the necessities of the enterprise and the adequacy of the revenues. The club, receding from its first proposal of $120,000,000, suggested $100,000,000, leaving to the discretion of the commission the amount of the bonds to be issued.

Thus, both sides have made concessions. If such progress can be made in two conferences, is it not fair to believe that further conferences might bring forth further concessions—in short, produce an agreement?

THE GALLEYS OF TIBERIUS.

At the bottom of Lake Nemi, still softly murmuring its enchantments to the Grove of Diana, two galleys of Tiberius have slumbered these 1900 years. Their rest is soon to be disturbed. Engineers say the water can be lowered sufficiently to permit the salvaging of the boats.

They were gorgeous craft, so legend tells. Time and Lake Nemi have, of course, absorbed the luxurious upholstery upon which lolled an Emperor and his friends in orgies of that long ago. But decks of gold and porphyry inlay are still intact where danced the beauties of some unremembered Ziegfeld, and rusted locks may yet creakingly endure which ached and shivered to the strain of cursing slaves.

There is always the splash of the galley oar in "the grandeur that was Rome," just as there is always the servitude of the Helot in "the glory that was Greece." Still, we shall all be curious to know in what manner of boat Tiberius and his crowd put out to sea.

A FUNNY ONE.

Today's best piece of unconscious humor is culled from the report of an address made by Dr. Alfred Scott Warthin at Battle Creek, Mich. Declaring that "sentimental and emotional factors make for race degeneration," he meant that—but let him explain:

I refer to the choice of a life-mate on the basis of love or sex attraction. If the race is to improve, such methods of choice must stop. Young men and women must be taught to pick out the best possible sex partners according to eugenic laws.

Wouldn't that make Cupid's little round tummy shake with laughter?

THE SO-CALLED SCIENCE OF PSYCHIATRY.

Dr. Samuel Marcus, a Los Angeles psychiatrist, is urging that Hickman's fate be determined by "scientific findings" rather than by the usual processes of law. What does he mean by scientific findings? That is a pretty big phrase to use in connection with the wailing branch of psychology known as psychiatry. What is science, anyhow? It is defined by the dictionary as "knowledge gained and verified by exact observation and correct thinking." In other words, science is truth. Has psychiatry reached a point where it can analyze and chart that vastly mysterious thing, the human mind, with mathematical exactitude? It has not. Does the slim body of observations we have gathered about the human mind justify the dogmatic attitude of Dr. Marcus? It does not.

Psychiatrists like Dr. Marcus do their profession a great injustice when they interfere in the processes of law with theories which are not thoroughly tested and upon which even the psychiatrists themselves disagree. We had a frightful exhibition of psychiatric "science" when, in the Loeb-Leopold trial, two sets of hired psychiatrists battled in the courtroom. Pure science shuddered at the sight of these men expounding for pay their opposing academic ideas. The psychiatrists have failed to profit by this lesson. They insist upon plying their wares in every criminal trial of any importance.

Psychiatry, in fact, has become a kind of evangelism. Its practitioners, to be sure, may be on the right track when they say that our present treatment of criminals is wrong. We hope they are. We hope the day will come when the mainpractices of criminal action will be understood so thoroughly that they can be eradicated. That day, however, has not yet dawned. Until it does, society must use the only weapon against crime that has ever proved efficacious—punishment.

Let us assume, however, that Dr. Marcus can, by examining Hickman, put his finger on the source of his monstrosity. Suppose he should be able to make a perfect diagnosis, finding the man insane, or perverted, or inverted, or whatever word may describe his condition. Could Dr. Marcus, by some kind of treatment, guarantee to society that it no longer need fear this monster? No, he could not. Psychiatrists are still at a loss to classify certain types of mental disorder, much less cure them. How can they cure insanity when they do not even know what it is? The medievalist thought an insane person was possessed of devils. A ridiculous idea, but just as sound as any explanation that has been attempted since.

A WRETCHED BUSINESS.

The Nicaraguan Mess

WHOSE WAR AND WHOSE ARMY?
From the Milwaukee Journal.

THE thing we have in Nicaragua is war. That it isn't war in Nicaragua because our troops are ranged with some of the Nicaraguans, is true. That it isn't a war on one political party for the benefit of another political party that is playing with us, is made to appear true because we showed the Moneda Liberals what would happen if they didn't come in out of the wet. But we have a war in Nicaragua, and the American boys who fall are just as dead as those who fall in any other war. We are up to our necks in this thing now. We must go on and do something or we shall plunge Nicaragua into worse chaos and death than we found there. So we send more Marines. If all the Marines are not enough and the President has at last to ask Congress for the army, what can we do but send it?

How big a war can a President have without authority? He can use the navy and the Marines. And the Marine Corps itself is an army against any country the size of Nicaragua. But that is not all. We are up to our necks in this thing now. We must go on and do something or we shall plunge Nicaragua into worse chaos and death than we found there. So we send more Marines. If all the Marines are not enough and the President has at last to ask Congress for the army, what can we do but send it?

We must back up Americans who are fighting. Yes, all agree. But no one likes it. And we had better settle the extent to which war may be carried on by a President and his Cabinet as it has been and is being carried on. Or there will come a demand that Congress refuse to appropriate money for a Marine Corps.

SANDINO'S ACTIVITIES.

From the New York Herald-Tribune.

RENEWED fighting between American Marines and Nicaraguan constabulary, on the one hand, and Gen. Sandino's bandit following, on the other, is being mistakenly interpreted as a flaring up of last year's civil war. It is not that in any sense, even though Sandino's command was more or less attached to the former revolutionary Liberal army.

In his retreat in the jungle near the Honduran border he has been able to exercise a sort of local terrorism. If hand pressed he can flee across the boundary line into an equally trackless region in Honduras. He is simply a military adventurer like Villa, a cutthroat and a holdup man. It is the same old story of the Marines up and the Nicaraguan constabulary to maintain order and to tranquillize the country in preparation for the 1928 election. They have done similar work in Nicaragua before, in Haiti and in the Dominican Republic. They will exterminate Sandino and his band, it is necessary to rid Nicaragua of their criminal activities, just as they finally ended the activities of the Haytian "cacos."

WE ARE AT WAR.

From the Courier-Journal.

FIVE Marines were killed and 22 wounded in this latest engagement with "rebels" in Nicaragua. The like would have been a major battle in the Spanish-American War. Practically this country is at war with somebody in Nicaragua, denominated "rebels" for lack of better identification; but since the administration sets up a straw Government behind the American lines, it avoids the necessity for a declaration of war by Congress to validate the invasion. Perhaps it is "protecting American interests." A great deal of that sort of thing has been going on through the centuries past in Asia, Africa, South and Central America and the isles of the seas. It has not been entirely neglected on the continent of Europe by Powers which had the strength to do it. "National interests" is an elastic term and is customarily stretched, first, as an excuse for augmenting the military arm of Government, and then to find employment for it.

NOT AN ORDINARY BANDIT.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

GEN. SANDINO, the rebel leader, whose followers have renewed their warfare, is called a bandit. He has been repudiated by Gen. Moncada and other Liberal leaders in Nicaragua. It should be obvious, however, that Sandino is not an ordinary bandit and that his strength has been sadly underestimated by the American authorities, just as the strength of Moncada was earlier underestimated by Diaz and his American supporters. When it comes to handling peace disturbers in Central America it is easy to believe what one wants to believe.

In the past few weeks the American Government has moved fast in trying to correct its mistakes in Central and Latin America. It has made progress, but it has not moved fast enough in Nicaragua to discount all the serious consequences of those mistakes. Bandit or patriot, Sandino and his persistent defiance of our Marines serve to recall realities and to indicate the need for the new policy that has been inaugurated by this Government in dealing with the peoples south of the Rio Grande.

RUMBLINGS FROM LATIN AMERICA.

From the New York Times.

THIS painful contrast between what we really wish to do and feel ourselves compelled to do in Central America is brought out by several unpleasant incidents, even part from the actual fighting. Not long ago one of the most influential men in the Argentine, Senor Mitre de la Paz, declared that it would be impossible to prevent discussion of the American Nicaraguan policy at Havana, even though it were kept officially off the program. Only yesterday one read of exiled Nicaraguans living in San Salvador sending a parting message to Lindbergh and expressing the hope that "the American Marines may cease their hostilities in Nicaragua." Still more significant is a telegram of greeting sent to Lindbergh in Mexico by the "South American and West Indian Central Union." This organization has long been known as antagonistic to the United States, so that it is natural for it in its message to Lindbergh to express the hope that his flight might indicate "the real end of the war against the martyred people of Nicaragua." It is easy to laugh at such flourishes, but there they are, and they indicate something which American statesmanship will be short-sighted if it does not take into the reckoning.

JOHN G. NEIHA

looks

IN a recent number of the New York Herald-Tribune's book section, Mr. Herbert S. Gorman, a critic of some eminence, expresses profound dissatisfaction with "The Oxford Book of American Verse" edited by H. W. Henshaw. He deems it an outrage that American poetry should be so poorly represented to the British public in an anthology series of anthologies, and he moved to characterize the anthology as an elderly Canadian poet's man in his dotage and quite out of touch with the genuinely significant "movements" of our generation.

It seems that Mr. Carman has made the mistake of including in his anthology certain verses by certain living poets who are quite without significance, while actually ignoring T. S. Eliot and E. E. Cummings. This seems incredible, but upon examination, the volume is found to be lacking in that respect. Mr. Gorman is violently convinced, and one can but agree with equal violence, that it is impossible to represent modern American poetry fairly without giving considerable attention to these masters. By all means, Mr. Carman should have included at least such a gem as the following from Mr. Cummings:

LUKEY (GOLDBERG'S) WORTH TOLD SEVERAL MILLION
FINKLESTEIN (FRITZ) LIVES
AT THE RITZ WEAR
CARL & WILSON COLLARS

And how was it possible to ignore the following exquisite lyric by Mr. Eliot?

The broad-backed hippopotamus
Rests on his belly in the mud;
Although he seems so firm to us
He is merely flesh and blood.

Flesh-and-blood is weak and frail,
Susceptible to nervous shock.
While the True Church can never fail
For it is based upon a rock.

It may be objected, and it is quite true, that neither quotation is fairly representative, for there is a certain facility in each that is hardly characteristic of its author. Still, in editing anthologies for the general public, it seems advisable to err a bit on the side of intelligibility.

Great as was Mr. Carman's error of judgment, there is some compensation in the fact that large areas of Amy Lowell are to be found in the Oxford book. Unquestionably if Mr. Gorman had not been quite overcome by the two unforfeitable omissions above noted, he could have pointed out other poems of a high quality that should have been included. He would, for instance, have deplored the neglect of Trumbull Stickney, a poet of high attainments but now practically forgotten. There is at least one magnificent sonnet by Stickney that might well have been included. Its octave runs as follows:

He still. The hanging gardens were a dream
That over Persian roses flew to kiss
The cupped lashes of Semiramis.
Troy never was, nor green Scamander stream.
The loveliness of Venice was a beam Caught within Titian's eye. The sunsets seem.
The world is very old and nothing is new.

Mr. Carman Overlooks

It is a recent number of the New York Herald-Tribune's book section, Mr. Herbert S. Gorman, a man of some eminence, expresses profound dissatisfaction with "The Oxford Book of American Verse" edited by Bliss Carman. He deems it an outrage that American poetry should be lacking in that respect to the British public in so authoritative a series of anthologies, and he moved to characterize the anthology as an elderly Canadian gentleman in his dotage and quite out of touch with the genuinely significant "movements" of our generation.

It may be objected, and it is quite true, that neither quotation is fairly representative, for there is certain lucidity in each, that is hardly characteristic of its author. Still, in editing anthologies for the general public, it seems advisable to err on the side of intelligibility.

Great as was Mr. Carman's error of judgment, there is some compensation in the fact that large areas of Amy Lowell are to be found in the Oxford book.

Unquestionably if Mr. Gorman had not been quite overcome by the two unforfeitable omissions above noted, he could have pointed out other poems of a high quality that could, for instance, have been neglected of Trumbull Stickney, a poet of high attainments but now practically forgotten. There is at least one magnificent sonnet by Keats that might well have been included. Its octave runs as follows:

Still, the hanging gardens were
A dream
That over Persia roses flew to
The curied fashions of Semiramis,
They never was, nor green Scamander
The loveliness of Venice was a beam
Caught within Titian's eye. The "sunsets seem."
The world is very old and nothing
Under less irritating circumstances, no doubt, Mr. Gorman would have remembered the marvellously wrought work of John Myers O'Hara, and perhaps some mention would have been made of Arthur Upson, truly a poet of the blood royal. Upson died 22 years ago at the age of 21, and one never hears of him these days. Upson had just completed a poetic drama of great beauty, so his friends say, when his summons came and he also rose to silence. He was drowned from his boat in Lake Bemidji, Minn., on Aug. 14, 1905, and the completed manuscript of his drama sank with him. It has not been recovered; but two-volume edition of his collected poems was issued by Brooks of Minneapolis in 1909. Mr. Gorman, under the stress of a lesser provocation, would have insisted, no doubt, that Upson deserved representation by the following sonnet, at least:

EX LIBRIS.
In an old book as even as I read Fast fading words adorned my shadowy page,
I crossed a tale of how, in other age
At Arqua, with his books around him sped
The word to Petrarch; and with nobel hand
Bowed gently o'er his volume,
That sweet sage
To Silence paid his willing self-sacrifice.
And they who found him him-pered, "He is dead!"
Thus timely from old comrades-ships would I
To Silence also rise. Let there be night, Stillness and only those staid watchers by,
And no light shine save my low study light—
Lest of his kind intent some human cry
Interprets not the Messenger aright.

There are various other neglected American poets whom Mr. Gorman would have been glad to remember out of gratitude, had he not been knocked quite off his balance by so heinous a literary crime as the neglect of Messrs. Cummings and Eliot. Perhaps he would have remembered Frederick Lawrence Knowles, who also died in 1905, if for no other poem than "Love Triumphant," the first stanza of which runs thus:

Helen's lips are drifting dust;
Helen is consumed with rust;
All the galleons of Greece
Drink the ocean's dreamless peace;
Lost was Solomon's purple shawl
Restless centuries ago;
Stately empires wax and wane—
Babylon, Barbary, and Spain;—
Only one thing, undefaced, Lasts though all the worlds lie waste
And the heavens are overturned.
—Dear, how long ago we learned!

MARVIN HUGHITT, 90, RAIL MAGNATE, DIES

Suffered Stroke of Apoplexy
Yesterday—Headed Chicago
& Northwestern 30 Years.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—Marvin Hughitt, 90 years old, for more than half a century a conspicuous figure in American railroad history, died today at his home in Lake Forest following a stroke of apoplexy yesterday.

Mr. Hughitt was stricken yesterday as he was about to go to his office. For more than 30 years he had been president and chairman of the board of directors of the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad. On retirement in June, 1925, he was made chairman of the Finance Committee.

Mr. Hughitt was born in Cayuga County, New York, Aug. 9, 1837, and came to Illinois in 1854, starting his career as a telegrapher. Mr. Hughitt, at 13 was a student telegrapher and when only 17 came to Chicago as a telegraph operator for the Illinois Central Railroad. He rose rapidly in the service of this railroad, becoming successively trainmaster, assistant superintendent and general superintendent. At the outbreak of the Civil War, Hughitt, not yet 25, and employed as a train dispatcher, started railroad men by supervising a remarkable movement of troop trains.

The government requisitioned the road to move a large body of troops and supplies to Cairo, Ill., and Hughitt was given the job and told to cause as little interference as possible with regular traffic. After 26 hours of uninterrupted work the task was done and not a train was delayed. The next week he was ordered to supervise the movement of the same troops to Virginia. Another 36 hours and this job was finished without a hitch. He was promoted to be assistant superintendent.

Throughout more than 70 years of his railroad career, Mr. Hughitt was a tireless worker and his "days off" were so rare that when he failed to show up at his office it was always an occasion for wide comment.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 6. THOUGHTS while strolling: The pleasant cop at Fifth avenue and Fifty-sixth street. Mauve lights in velvet draped windows. The golden glow on the Hochsler building. Nan Britton, who wrote "The President's Daughter"—and not a head turns.

Those women who smoke cigarettes waiting for autos in front of dressmaking parlors. More buildings resembling wedding cakes. Jesse Crawford, the movie organizer. A crowd before a daguerreotype of Barnum and Tom Thumb in a photographer's cabinet. The Ship Grill—where patrons may take dogs. An ex-jockey driving a taxi. Whatever became of the Gilded Age? The apartment house where Peggy Joyce used to live. Jack Curley. Sullen looking men who loaf about garage entrances.

The glitter of Viennese bakeries. Wedding costumes for rent. Palmier parlors. A mumbbling bar crosses herself in front of a church and stumbles on. The eerie quiet of a hospital street. And those garreted orderlies hanging about the uninvited and matches. On the way during a long drive he stopped to get the latest edition of the evening paper. He thought a 50-cent tip was too much—a quarter, he considered ample. And I have been wondering since where in the world he came from.

IN a swank silverware shop on the avenue there is a window display of a silver cocktail shaker surrounded by delicately flanged, thin stemmed goblets. An engraved card stands against the shaker reading: "An ancient receptacle used to agitate liquids."

TODAY I donned a necktie sold under the guarantee "an exclusive pattern sold only to a single customer." And in a four-block walk I saw a half dozen exactly like it. It is only the comforting counsel of the Blessed Promises that keeps me going.

"Quite as I expected, but somewhat sooner than I thought," he said, "the order has been given in Washington to open a real war in Nicaragua, and push it to the limit regardless of who and how many are killed, and regardless of the effect such a war will have upon us in political and commercial way."

He assailed Secretary Kellogg as the antithesis of a secretary having tact and ability, recited the "intriguing manner in which Washington has obtained control of several countries which have been invaded and imposed upon our policy of intervention," and predicted protests from Latin American delegates over this country's activities in Nicaragua at the coming pan-American conference.

RUDOLPH D. KOHN FUNERAL SERVICES HELD AT HOME

Former Director of St. Louis Stock Exchange Had Retired From Duties in 1922.

Funeral services for Rudolph D. Kohn, 78 years old, former director of the St. Louis Stock Exchange, were held today at the residence, 4848 McPherson avenue.

Kohn, who died Wednesday, had been in ill health since 1922, when he retired from the directorship and active business.

Born in St. Louis, he had attended Central High School and was an enthusiastic member, frequently contributing a speech or a bit of verse at the annual meeting of the small remaining group of St. Louisans who attended the old LaSalle School.

He became the youngest railroad treasurer in the United States in 1877 when, at 28, he was elected treasurer of old Northern Missouri Railroad. Five or six years later he became a stock and bond broker. He was an organizer of the Germania Club, forerunner of the Liederkreis, and a member of the St. Louis Choral Society. He is survived by two brothers and three sisters.

Funeral services for Frank L. Moe, representative of the National Lines of Mexico, for 25 years in St. Louis and Chicago, were held today. Burial was in Valhalla cemetery. Moe, who was 65 years old, died of heart disease Wednesday at his home, 5136 Vernon avenue. His widow, two brothers and two sisters survive him.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Emil Erdreich, 29-year-old college student, was in jail today while detectives investigated charges that he stole $35,000 from his employers to complete his education. Since Nov. 29, police said, Erdreich systematically forged checks of the New York Merchandise Co.

Nine banks accounts totaling approximately $7000 were opened with the stolen money, the youth confessed. He gave $25,000 in cash to the detectives who arrested him as he sat in a classroom at New York University last night. In addition to the money obtained with forged checks, detectives said, Erdreich collected smaller amounts supposedly telegraphed to company salesmen in nearby towns but which he collected himself under aliases.

PROTEST OF JEWS TO RESULT IN CHANGE IN 'KING OF KINGS'

Producers Agree to Add Prologue absolving Race From Blame for Crucifixion.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—As a result of protests made by Jews all over the country about the motion picture, "The King of Kings," which is based on the life of Jesus, Cecil B. de Mille, the producer, will add a special prologue in which the Jews will be exonerated of all guilt in the death of Jesus. The entire blame for the crucifixion will be placed on Calphas, the high priest, and "other hirelings of the Roman empire."

This was announced yesterday by Alfred M. Cohen of Cincinnati, international president of the Independent Order of B'nai B'rith, the organization which led in denouncing the film as "unfair to Jews" and "an instigator of prejudice."

Cohen also made known that De Mille will make a "complete revision" of the sequences of the film, cutting out all captions and scenes which the Jews found objectionable.

SCHNEIDER COMMENTS ON RIVAL'S PLATFORM

Says Dr. Stewart Was Not So Eager for Budget and Other Reforms in Legislature.

William R. Schneider of St. Louis, a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor on a platform advocating establishment of a budget system in State Government, consolidation of State departments with overlapping activities and for central purchasing of State supplies, yesterday sent a letter to Dr. James Stewart, a rival candidate, whose platform contained similar planks.

Schneider told Stewart that when the legislative fight for these reforms was on, under Schneider's leadership, Stewart gave no assistance, but spoke unfavorably of it. Schneider's letter follows:

"Permit me to congratulate you on your good judgment in adopting my budgetary government platform almost in its entirety in announcing your gubernatorial candidacy.

"This is especially gratifying to me because it is concrete evidence that my many months of work in and out of the Legislature to establish these tried business methods in Missouri State Government is bearing fruit.

"It is further gratifying to me in view of the fact that at the last session of the Legislature, when this measure lacked only a few votes of passing the House of Representatives, you were indifferent to its merits and did nothing to help its passage; in fact from time to time spoke unfavorably of it. Your eleventh hour conversion is proof positive that thousands of other Missourians must now feel as we do.

"May I express the hope in the most kindly manner that the selfish opponents of this measure will not be successful in changing your mind, as to the necessity of the measure by the time the next session of the Legislature arrives?

"I urge you to join with me in an earnest endeavor to induce all other aspirants for the governorship to also adopt my platform. Thus the battle will be threefold, and the people of the State will greatly profit by the proved economics and efficiency of a better government."

AND STATISTICS

Now St. Louis, let's get down to real facts—34 years ago or more we started out on a shoestring, determined to make good. We started to cut prices—naturally the old-timers started to knock. And they've been knocking ever since.

They knocked our merchandise.

They knocked our method of doing business.

They knocked our personnel.

They kept on knocking.

Who's always considered every knock a "BOOST".

No truer statement was ever made.

They advertised our business.

We kept a still upper lip.

Let's of the time we were shutting on this life.

But we kept on peering away.

Cutting the price on QUALITY Merchandise.

WE KEPT OUR QUALITY.

Ultimately we gained the confidence of the St. Louis home-loving, economical housewife.

Since then—Well, we'll leave it to you.

Had we bamboozled, misrepresented, short-weighted or mislead—We wouldn't be where we are today.

Leaders of QUALITY Merchandise.

Still going.

Bigger and better than ever before.

Honest weights; honest cash—no merchandise—selling for less than delivery—having the goods.

Not handing you that old "stuff"—We're just out, but we have something just as good. No more, Bob!

Now, St. Louis, we realize we're away out in the country—miles from everybody. We know it's a long, cold drive.

Yet the same is worth while. And don't you know? The drive will do you good. Worth perhaps more than the goods you might get in you.

Yet—the day will seem shorter—and the night of solid comfort from the outside—may save you trouble in doctor bills.

So jump in, Lizzie—just as you are—and do come on.

Don't be silly—bring the kiddies, Grandma, or Grandpa, Uncle Ned, Aunt Susie—or even a friend.

We do not (nor never have) entered to millionaire.

We'll wait 'em if they come in.

But we're catering to you—God's people—the men and wife—who are striving to accumulate for rainy days—who are raising a family (or contemplating doing so) when conditions are such that they can't (or never have) entered to millionaire.

We'll wait 'em if they come in.

ASPARAGUS SHORTCAKE

One of the Various Ways Canned Asparagus May Be Cooked.

Make an old-fashioned shortcake thus: Sift two cups of flour and one teaspoon of salt together. In to the mixture chop four tablespoons of lard until the mixture looks like coarse meal. Mix with six tablespoons of ice water and work with a fork until a stiff dough is formed. Pat and roll the shortcake out thin. Bake in pie pans in a quick oven. Brush one layer with melted butter and the other with milk. While the shortcake bakes open a can of asparagus, cut into inch lengths and steam for five minutes. Season it well and combine with it a pint of good white sauce and two chopped hard-cooked eggs.

For a white sauce always use three tablespoons of Nucca, three tablespoons of flour and one and one-half cups of milk or cream, or parts of milk and the vegetable cooking water. Combine asparagus, white sauce and chopped eggs; fill the two halves of the shortcake and use the vegetable mixture over the top. Sprigs of parsley may garnish this vegetable dish.

Canned Sauer Kraut.

Canned sauerkraut is just as good as the fresh and has the same nutritive value.

A Few Winter Suggestions.

Winter vegetables, such as Brussels sprouts, white and yellow turnips and squash, are inexpensive and should be used often. Cranberries supply necessary acids and minerals as well as attractive color and flavor to the menu. Very stiff cranberry jelly makes a delicious salad in combination with cream cheese and one that supplies a large amount of vitamins.

Instead of Whipped Cream.

Cook one cup evaporated milk to top of double boiler 20 minutes. Chill, add one stiffly beaten egg white. Add a few drops vanilla and sifted powdered sugar to taste.

Unmold and serve on pretty plates, garnishing each with two halved prunes filled with halved marshmallows. Top each whip with a star of whipped cream.

Prune Ice Cream.

PLANNING MENUS

THE COMING WEEK

Guard Against Monotony
Serving Foods in Different Ways.

In planning the food for the week, we have selected with Yorkshire pudding for the change from the poultry is the traditional holiday meal. Then again, it will allow as meal on the following day, sliced roast beef is served with a hot soup and a holiday sort of frozen fruit salad.

There should be enough beef left for hash for the lunch. If, however, the quantity is rather scant, add meatstoes and any left-over vegetable. It would probably be better to egg for the small children's instead of giving them the shoulder of lamb is selected Tuesday night. This is one of least expensive cuts of meat, is best if it is boned and if there is any left-over it is creamed and served with the potatoes for next day's lunch. Instead of using poached eggs, only one vegetable plate is included this week. In serving this, make a mound of spinach in the center of the plate and with the creamed mushrooms. Arrange the boiled rice, the beans and the sliced carrots in the center of the plate. Sprinkle around the spinach, cheese dressing is served with salad at this meal to give a protein. Roquefort, cream or American cheese may be preferred. It is best added to a seasoned French dressing. Mushrooms are inexpensive, time of year and can be used good advantage in giving variety to the family menu. They are digested and are delicate in flavor. The commercially grown mushrooms are perfectly safe to eat, there are also some very canned mushrooms on the market. Creamed and served on the steamed with tomatoes or cream with shrimp, oysters or chicken make delicious and nutritious luncheon or supper dishes.

RECIPES FOR DISHES

IN WEEK'S MENUS

The Dishes Selected Have Been Kept Simple in Character.

The panned oysters served on Saturday for lunch are one of the nicest of the oyster dishes. To prepare them drain the oysters and remove any bits of shell. Melt two tablespoons of butter in a frying pan for each pint of oysters. Add the oysters to the hot butter and stir with a spoon over a moderate fire until the oysters are curled on the edges and well browned. Season with a little lemon juice, a few drops of Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper and serve on buttered toast.

New Year's Cookies.

One-half cup shortening, 1 egg, one-quarter teaspoon grated nutmeg, one-half teaspoon baking powder, one cup sugar, one-half cup milk, two tablespoons caraway seeds, two and one-half cups of flour.

Cream the shortening and the sugar together. Add the eggs and beat well. Stir in the nutmeg, lemon rind and caraway seeds, eggs and milk. Sift the flour and the baking powder and add more flour if necessary to make a stiff dough. Chill the mixture. Then roll out to one-eighth inch thick. Cut in small squares. Brush with milk and bake on greased pans in a hot oven about eight minutes. This makes about three dozen cookies.

Roast Beef Yorkshire Pudding.

Six pounds of rib roast beef, two cups milk, one and one-half cups flour, two eggs, one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon baking powder.

Select a medium fat rib roast, weighing about six pounds. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, flour and cook in a very hot oven until the meat begins to brown. Then reduce the heat; cover the pan and if the meat is liked rare allow one and one-half hours for roasting. If liked well done allow two hours. One-half hour before the meat is done beat the eggs until very light. Add the milk; sift the flour with the baking powder and mix to a stiff paste. Add to the liquid mixture. Beat until very smooth, using an egg beater. Pour most of the fat out of the roasting pan leaving about three tablespoons. Put the meat on a rack so that it is three inches from the bottom of the pan. Pour the batter into the hot roasting pan and cook about one-half hour in a moderate oven. The pudding can be baked in a separate pan well greased and the beef dripping, though the real Yorkshire pudding is always cooked with the meat on a rack over the pudding so that the juice drips down into it.

Chocolate Fondue.

One cup stale bread crumbs, one-eighth teaspoon cayenne pepper, one cup grated cheese, one cup milk, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon dry mustard, two eggs.

Soak the milk. Pour it over the bread crumbs. Stir in all the seasonings and as soon as the crumbs are soft add the cheese and the beaten egg yolks. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites last. Pour into a greased shallow pan and bake in a hot oven about 25 minutes. Serve very hot.

Sweet Potato Pie.

Pasify for one crust, two eggs, one and one-half cups milk, one teaspoon salt, two cups mashed sweet potatoes, one-half cup sugar (brown or white), grated rind of one small lemon, one-quarter teaspoon cinnamon.

Line a pie plate with the pastry. Mash the sweet potatoes and rub through a strainer. Beat the eggs until light and add to the potatoes the milk and sugar. Stir in the rind of the lemon and the cinnamon. Bake in a moderate oven about 35 minutes or until firm and slightly brown on top. If desired the pie may be covered with a meringue or served with whipped cream. Serve warm or cold.

WHY SPINACH IS HEALTHY

This Vegetable Should Have a Place on the Daily Menu.

Probably the reason that spinach has come to be practically synonymous with good health lies in the fact that this particular form of greens contains so many of the health giving properties of fresh vegetables. To begin with, spinach is next to second on the top of the list of alkaline foods. Only fresh lima beans and muskmelons contain more alkaline than does spinach.

Then spinach contains an unusually generous quantity of lime which makes for hard bones, as good as much magnesium which is a good body regulatory, even more phosphorus within which no living thing can do without. It is rich in iron which helps to make what our grandmothers used to call "rich blood."

Omelets for Luncheon.

Vegetable omelets make use of the same time the addition of the vegetables makes the dish go much further. Spanish omelet made with a large amount of the well-flavored tomato sauce and four eggs can be made to serve five people, especially if the potatoes or some starch, serving food is used at the same time.

In planning the food for the week, we have selected roast beef with Yorkshire pudding for Sunday as a change from the poultry that is the traditional holiday dish. Then again, it will allow an easy meal on the following day. Cold sliced roast beef is served here with a hot soup and a holiday dessert of frozen fruit salad.

There should be enough roast beef left for hash for Tuesday lunch. If, however, the quantity of meat is rather scant, add more potatoes and any left-over vegetables. It would probably be better on the day to serve poached or coddled egg for the small children's lunch. Instead of giving them the hash.

Shoulder of lamb is selected for Tuesday night. This is one of the least expensive cuts of meat and is best if it is boned and stuffed. If there is any left-over it may be creamed and served with the baked potatoes for next day's lunch. Instead of using poached eggs.

Only one vegetable plate dinner is included this week. In arranging this, make a mound of spinach at the center of the plate and cover it with the creamed mushrooms. Arrange the boiled rice, the string beans and the diced carrots in borders around the spinach. The cheese dressing is served with the salad at this meal to give added protein. Roquefort, cream or American cheese may be used as preferred. It is best added to a well seasoned French dressing.

A NEW SWEET POTATO DISH

Sweet potato mound is a welcome addition to potato cooking. Take six sweet potatoes, one-fourth cup milk, two tablespoons butter, one-half teaspoon salt and one-eighth teaspoon pepper. Wash potatoes and cook in boiling salted water until tender. Then pare, mash and season with milk, butter, salt and pepper. Stir through ricer and make into mounds.

Serve with rose apples which are made of two cups of sugar, four cups of apples and one cup water. Pare and core apples. Boil sugar and water low for ten minutes. Add cinnamon candy. When dissolved add apples and simmer until tender. Serve with sweet potato mound.

EAT CABBAGE IN WINTER

There is a Tendency To Decrease the Use of Green Vegetables.

Cabbage is one of the most valuable of the winter foods, for it is cheap, and at the same time an excellent source of all the protective vitamins and of such minerals as calcium, iron and phosphorus. It makes good salads when served raw, and combined well with a number of other foods, so that it need never become monotonous. Other inexpensive vegetables are turnips, carrots, squash and celery. Lettuce, chicory, escarole, endive and watercress are also available as salad greens.

Some sort of salad should be served every day. It may be a plain cole slaw, a combination of cabbage with apples or with some other raw vegetable; fruit such as oranges, grapefruit, tangerines or grapes served on lettuce, etc. The main thing is to include such foods, then to select them according to the state of your purse.

3 Because Children Like It and It Is Good for Them.

Children who must be coaxed to eat other cereal are fond of 3 Minute Oat Flakes because of its light, fluffy, appetizing appearance in the dish and its different, delicious flavor. As all of the food value of the whole grain is retained, it is an unequalled builder for their little bodies.

After investigation, if you find the grocers in your neighborhood are not yet selling 3 Minute Oat Flakes, send us this coupon completely filled out, together with 3c for postage and we will mail you a trial sample and a booklet containing many reasons why your grocer should sell 3 Minute Oat Flakes.

Beat egg yolks well; add orange juice and rind; then add sugar gradually, beating constantly. Sift flour with the baking powder and salt and add to the first mixture. Then fold in the well-beaten egg whites. Line a shallow pan with paper and pour into it a thin layer of the mixture. Bake 10 to 12 minutes in a moderate oven (375°F.). Turn out on a sheet of oil paper, sprinkled with powdered sugar. Quickly roll the paper off the bottom of the cake and cut the crust from the edge. Spread with marmalade and roll quickly.

—you can prepare a delicious cake in 5 minutes with Instant Swans Down!

Instant Swans Down is a "dry batter" for cakes. The package contains Swans Down Cake Flour, highest quality shortening, sugar, egg whites, baking powder, and flavoring extract—all carefully measured and mixed.

You just add milk—or water—and beat! That's all. Your cake is ready for the oven—and it's sure to be good in whatever form you make it—cup cakes, loaf cake, or layer cake.

Try different icings with the Instant Swans Down Cake. Or add ingredients to Instant Swans Down... you can make spice cakes, yellow cakes, chocolate cakes, and many others, in no time at all and make them all successfully!

FOR CAKES
YOU MIX YOURSELF
USE THE REGULAR SWANS DOWN CAKE FLOUR

Besides Instant Swans Down, there is also regular Swans Down Cake Flour—the famous flour alone, with no other ingredients added.

It is made especially for cakes and pastry. Swans Down is

27 times as fine as bread flour

It takes 100 pounds of selected wheat to make 26 pounds of Swans Down. It's not surprising that Swans Down gives cakes an extra-lightness and fineness... and an extra-deliciousness, too!

HOMEMADE MOLASSES CANDY

Young Folks Will Enjoy a Candy Pull During the Holidays.

Homemade molasses candy has not gone entirely out of fashion because the Home Economics editor received a request for a recipe for this one-time popular confection. The easiest, and probably the most satisfactory, way to make molasses candy is to take two cups of molasses, one cup granulated or light brown sugar, two tablespoons butter and one tablespoon vinegar. Flavor, if desired. Lemon, vanilla or peppermint flavorings may be successfully used in molasses candy. Place ingredients in a granite kettle and boil until a little of the mixture dropped in cold water becomes brittle. Pour into a buttered pan. When cool enough to handle pull until a light color and hard. Butter the hands before pulling.

SERVING BREAKFAST FRUITS

Combining Citrus With Fresh or Dried Fruits Gives a Change. Oranges are a popular and nutritious winter fruit, but if they are always served in the same way, you are apt to get tired of them. Slice them occasionally for breakfast. Next time use orange juice, theanges with stewed prunes, sliced bananas or sliced pineapple. A combination of orange and grapefruit pulp served in small glasses is also a good variation for an occasional breakfast fruit.

HomeEconomic
WAYS OF PREPARING SAVORY VEGETABLES

Regular Vegetable Dishes Give Variety by New Way of Serving.

If you have tasted gay little rots prepared in the following manner as an accompaniment to roast meat, you will have a proper appreciation of their true value. Cut the carrots into inch strips, scraping them and cook until tender in boiling, salted water. Into a saucepan two teaspoons of butter, one-fourth cupful of vinegar, two tablespoonfuls of sugar and a grating of nutmeg. Boil the carrots and cook until they are transparent.

Baked Cucumbers. Cut lengthwise from each of large cucumbers a shallow slice and scoop out the center from the main part of the cucumbers, leaving the slices for lids. Prepare the following stuffing: Melt one pint of stale bread crumbs with hot meat gravy and stir in one-fourth cup butter. Season to taste with salt and pepper and add small onion scraped.

One-half a cup of crabmeat, chopped meat of any kind, blanch together with one egg beaten slightly. Pack this filling into the cucumbers, lay a thin slice of ham over the meat and place on top of slices saved for lids, tie them with a soft cord and place the cucumbers on the rack of a broiler pan in a hot oven for half an hour. They should be baked two or three times while cooking with water or stock. Serve hot.

Onions Au Gratin. Peel six onions and cook in boiling salted water until tender enough to remove the centers. Make a stuffing as follows: Chop one-fourth cup onion centers to make one-fourth cupful of bread crumbs and three tablespoonfuls of melted liquid. Fill the cavities of the onions, place in a greased casserole and sprinkle all with one-third cupful of grated American cheese. Make a white sauce, using one tablespoonful each of flour, butter, fat, three-fourth teaspoonful salt and three-fourth cupful milk. Pour the sauce around the onions and sprinkle generously with paprika. Bake at 400 degrees for 15 minutes.

Swiss Potatoes. Take three medium sized potatoes, one teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one tablespoon butter, three tablespoon milk and six eggs. Wash clean, dry and place potatoes in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees) until about 45 minutes. Remove from oven and cut in halves lengthwise. Scoop out inside, being careful not to break shells. Break crust at a time, into saucer and into potato shells. Mash potato, add salt, pepper, butter and milk. Press through pastry tube on top of eggs. Place in a moderate oven to bake eggs, about 15 minutes. Serve garnished with water or parsley.

Cocunut Patties. Take one can of coconut, one-fourth pound package, one-half pound chocolate, one-half cup butter, one-half cup sugar, one-half cup milk. Cut the chocolate into small pieces, put into the upper part of a double boiler and melt slowly over hot water. Add the coconut, stirring until well mixed. Drop by teaspoons onto waxed paper and set aside until firm.

Chocolate Peanut Patties. Roasted peanuts may be eaten with chocolate according to the recipe and then a spoon heaped together in an attractive patty.

Chocolate Almonds. Blanch the almonds by putting them in a bowl of water and then stand two or three minutes. Roast them in oven and then put in the following preparation and drop on paraffin paper.

Take one-half pound of sweet chocolate, two level tablespoons butter and two tablespoons boiling water.

Put chocolate in small saucepan, add boiling water and when well stirred in butter and water, well. If found to be too thick, add more water; if too thin, add chocolate.

Chocolate Coated Marshmallows. Melt sweet chocolate in a double boiler. Then remove from heat and allow to cool to about 100 degrees or body heat. Then the marshmallows are carefully prepared chocolate. They move and place on wax paper, ready to cool.

Add Nuts to the Mixture. Nuts are very concentrated and because they are rich in protein and fat they are valuable sources of energy and of building material. Combined with other rich in food value and that are easily digested if the nuts are in small pieces and are thoroughly masticated.

Try This For Rheumatic Agony and Pain Tormented Joints

If you have a swollen, inflamed or pain tormented joint don't keep on suffering agony day after day.

For quick, comforting relief thousands rub on Joint Ease, and for Rheumatic pain druggists will tell you that it is always in demand.

Joint Ease is a soothing, penetrating emollient that you can rub on often to obtain speedy results.

Its comforting influence and speedy action indicate its use for such ailments as chest colds, neuralgia, neuritis, lameness, sore, aching muscles, lumbago and sciatica.

For feet that are inflamed and burn and ache a good rubbing at night with Joint Ease usually means foot comfort in the morning.

Ask for Joint-Ease at any drug store in America—60 cents a tube—rub it in—it penetrates.

Send name and address for large, generous 15-day trial tube to—FREE Pope Laboratories, Desk 2, Hallowell, Maine.

There is no substitute for Joint-Ease—the dealer who offers you something else, not only insults your intelligence, but is unworthy of your confidence.

There must be a sauce. I never ate a finer one than this favorite one. The whites of four eggs are placed in the first bowl and the yolks in another. In the second place are placed a cup and a half of powdered sugar and a pint of whipped cream. All are stirred together. Lastly the whites of eggs are whipped and pored into the second bowl. A little flavoring is added and vigorous beating is applied just before the pudding and dressing are to be served.

If you are not so fortunate as to go through that jolly domestic rite, the home making of the plum pudding, you can go to the store and buy exactly the same properties made by a commercial concern. It is put up in a sealed tin can. This is put into water and boiled for an hour.

Such a pudding may be served with the sauce or with good ice cream. Your guests will never know the splendid product is not the result of your own skill.

Don't be afraid of well prepared and thoroughly cooked plum pudding. It is digestible and nourishing. It is a real food.

The trouble with many desserts is not in their wholesomeness and digestibility, but in their being eaten after the stomach is crowded full with the earlier courses.

Leave room for the plum pudding. Then you will give it the attention it deserves and have the enjoyment of a delicious preparation.

When you realize the amount of labor involved, you will not gulp it down, but will eat the pudding slowly and appreciatively. It will be made a part of the meal and not a hasty addition to a meal already too large.

The pudding and its dressing are made of the best of food-stuffs. They are body building and energy producing. In every sense they are healthful foods.

I hope your holiday season will be the happiest you have ever had! (Copyright, 1927.)

SOME ARTISTIC CREATIONS MADE WITH ICE CREAM

Housewives Who Want Something Different Will Do Well to Try These Ideas.

The exercise of practical judgment and artistic imagination and a commercial ice cream brick or a quart of loose ice cream will appear on the table as something entirely different.

For instance, try:

Pommes Glace.
Purchase little paper cases; into each one put a layer of vanilla ice cream.

Sprinkle with maroons glace cut into tiny pieces and soaked previously in Maraschino cordal. Then add another layer of ice cream dusted with powdered macaroon crumbs and top off with a spoonful of whipped cream.

Hidden Hearts.
Put a Maraschino cherry and some shredded pineapple into the bottom of sherbet glass and cover with a generous serving of chocolate and vanilla ice cream. Melt a bar of sweet chocolate and pour over the ice cream. When this hardens as it does almost immediately, top the dish with whipped cream and whole pecan meats.

Bombe Wettlin.
All you have to do is to put chocolate ice cream in first, then vanilla cream with candied fruits in it, more chocolate ice cream, and a top layer of spun sugar or whipped cream.

So you see, with a little imagination an original dessert may be evolved out of that old favorite ice cream.

TOMMY THEVENOW SIGNS NEW CARDINAL CONTRACT FOR ONE YEAR

SHORTSTOP TO GO SOUTH WITH BATTERY SQUAD

Fractured Ankle Apparently as Good as Ever, X-Ray Photo Indicates — To Depart for Home Tonight.

Tommy Thevenow, with his ankle again o. k., signed a one-year contract at the Cardinal offices at noon today, after a conference with President Sam Breadon and Vice President Branch Rickey of the club.

Thevenow said he expected to go south with the first squad of Cardinals, the pitchers and catchers, who will depart about Feb. 15. This will give him an extra week of work.

Terms of the new contract were not disclosed.

Dr. Robert W. Hyland, club surgeon for the St. Louis team, announced this morning that examination of the X-ray photograph of Thevenow's ankle, injured last June, verified his earlier report on superficial examination that the shritstop had entirely recovered.

"The photos show that Thevenow's ankle is as good as it ever was," said Dr. Hyland, "and I see no reason why he should not be able to perform next season as he did in 1926, when the Cardinals won the National League pennant and world championship."

Thevenow said that he was in fine condition and that he had been working out, doing a lot of running, to test the ankle.

The Cardinal shortstop was injured last June in sliding into second base.

Clarence Jonnard, catcher obtained from the Phillies, yesterday was sold outright to the Houston club of the Texas League by the Cardinals. He came here with Jimmy Cooney and John Moken in exchange for the battery of John Schulte and Jimmy Ring.

American Owned Horses in Grand National Event

112, a New Record Nominated For British Feature, to Be Run March 10.

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Jan. 6.—The Grand National Steeplechase to be run March 20, will have a distinctly American interest, since the entries included several American horses. The entries, which were announced yesterday, number 112—twenty in excess of the previous record in 1922.

The American horses are Billy Barton, owned by Howard Bruce of Baltimore, and Burgoright, owned by Benjamin Behr, Chicago. Burgoright has been in training at Aintree for some time past.

Other American horses entered are John Sanford's Bright Boy and Mount Etna, J. B. Baiding's Drimouth, Harry la Montagne's Patagonia, A. C. Bostwick's Priming Pan, E. B. Stushure's The Ace, W. P. Draper's Knight of the Wilderness, M. D. Blair's Paxford, Arunius, and Master of Arts, and G. L. Redmond's Test Match.

"DR. KRAENZLEIN, OLD-TIME ATHLETIC STAR, DIES IN EAST"

By the Associated Press. PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—Dr. Alvin C. Kraenzlein, 51, former University of Pennsylvania star and one of the greatest athletes of his time, died in the Walkers-Barre (Pa.) General Hospital today.

Kraenzlein, an all-around athlete, had few equals for 10 years. He was the holder of six world amateur records in his day. They were 50 yards, indoor, high hurdles, 4 seconds; 120 yards high hurdles on turf, 15.2-5 seconds; 220 low hurdles, 23.4 seconds; 120 high hurdles, 15.1-3 seconds; broad jump, 24 feet 3.5 inches, and 300 yards low hurdles, indoor, 33.5-5 seconds.

In the 1900 Olympic meet at Paris, Kraenzlein scored four first places. His victories were in the 60-meters dash, 110 and 200 meters hurdles and the broad jump.

Dr. Kraenzlein startled the sports world with his performances at Pennsylvania, where he was graduated in dentistry in 1901. His record of three first places and a second in the Eastern Intercollegiate Championship meet in 1900, when he scored 18 points, is said to still stand. He specialized in the hurdles and broad jumping, but also was a brilliant performer in the 100-yard dash.

His record of 23.3 in the 220 low hurdles stood for 25 years.

Upon his graduation, Dr. Kraenzlein devoted many years to track coaching and training and the up-building of youths in colleges and schools. He was born in Milwaukee, where his athletic career began in the West Side High School.

Murchison will remain in the hospital for at least two weeks longer, his doctor said.

LOUGHRAN IS 8 TO 5 FAVORITE OVER LOMSKI

Philadelphia Will Have Slight Edge in Weight and Reach Over Pacific Coast Battler.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Called upon to referee the newly acquired world's light-heavyweight championship in Madison Square Garden tonight, Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia will be forced to exercise his highly rated ring generalship to the utmost against the crushing and battering style of Leo Lomski, his Pacific coast challenger.

The bout, over the 15-round route will be the first title affair of the new year. It will start at 10 o'clock, Eastern time. Loughran rates an 8-to-5 favorite. He is expected to be down to 174½ pounds, half a pound under the division limit, while Lomski probably will scale 171.

Loughran is 25 years old. Lomski, who is 24, has been a scrapper from school days. In his home town in Aberdeen, Wash., Lomski frequently was called upon to battle for a young brother and thus developed the art of fist-fighting.

Lomski an Infighter.
Lomski makes up for a lack of scientific skill in a stout heart and double action fists. He is particularly adept at infighting. He can absorb plenty of punishment. Stiff right hooks to the heart and equally dangerous left hooks to the head are two of his favorite blows.

Former Champion Weighs 205 — Asserts He Has No Definite Plans.

By the Associated Press. LOS ANGELES, Jan. 6.—Jack Dempsey has begun light training in his downtown gymnasium and insists it is only to keep fit and not with any definite plan in mind for another chance at Gene Tunney, to whom he lost the heavyweight boxing championship.

"There's nothing in the wind at all," Dempsey said. "I don't want to get fat and the only way to keep from it is to have a regular training diet."

"Fight Tunney again? Sure, but I'm not in the mood to do any fighting in eliminations to get another crack at the title. Of course, I might take on one or two preliminary scraps if there was a definite program in sight but there's absolutely nothing to reports that one has been drawn up."

Dempsey's time recently has been well filled with managing his hotel and other enterprises. Now he has started a daily session in his gymnasium, which includes bag punching and wrestling. He weighs about 205 and considers it too much.

Coliseum Athletic Club Not Eligible to Promote Boxing, State Board Rules

Danny Nee, Counsel for the Body, Finds Charter Contains Nothing to Show Organization Is Charitable, Fraternal, Patriotic or Religious, as P rovided by Missouri Law.

The ambition of the Coliseum Athletic Club officials to promote professional boxing shows in this city suffered a setback this morning, when it was announced that the State Boxing Commission had found the organization was ineligible under the Missouri law.

Answering a long-distance phone query, Secretary Ben Harrison of the State Board told the Post-Dispatch that counsel Danny Nee had examined the Coliseum Athletic Club's charter and found nothing therein that indicated its purpose was patriotic, benevolent, charitable or fraternal in character.

"The State law is very plain," Secretary Harrison stated, "and the report of the counsel makes mandatory that this board refuse to confirm the application of the Coliseum A. C. Much as we would like to see the club operate, it does not appear compatible with the law."

President Dan C. Jones of the Coliseum A. C. yesterday told representatives of St. Louis newspapers that the club stood ready to promote boxing and only the failure of the State Board to act on its application had prevented them from going forward.

Although the Coliseum A. C. itself may not promote boxing, according to Secretary Harrison's ruling, there is a way out of its dilemma, it was pointed out by officials of the commission.

"If the Coliseum A. C. wants to promote boxing, it can do so under the license already issued to one of several organizations which were declared eligible by the commission," Secretary Harrison said.

"There is nothing to prevent any organization from using the Coliseum as its headquarters and clubhouse. The Coliseum A. C. could reach an agreement with one of the Legion posts."

President Jones was notified today of the State Commission's action and said he assumed that it was final.

"We will not attempt to operate through the charter of some other organization, because that would be just justification. Besides, if we promoted under the name of a Legion post, other posts might take offense and we do not care to cause any ill feeling."

"We will have to let the matter rest as it is I presume," he concluded.

Legion Post After Coliseum.
The denial of the Coliseum club's application leaves the arena at the disposal of any club that can pay the price. Major Pickering, manager of the Coliseum, said that the Jackson Johnson Legion post had made a proposition to rent the building for boxing, but that its proposal had been tabled pending the Coliseum A. C.'s request for a license. Major Pickering said the Coliseum attorneys would give the Jackson Johnson Post's proposal immediate attention.

"We are ready to rent the arena for boxing provided the terms are satisfactory," Major Pickering said.

COACH FOG ALLEN, who directs basketball, football and other activities at his university, says that there is one instruction to athletes, especially in basketball, that invariably brings results. It is: "Run the hearts out of your opponents first, then beat 'em."

Our soccer players in St. Louis furnish an example. Formerly jurning continuous speed was the winning hand held by our "pro" soccer teams, in cup competitions.

Now look at us. Only one team of the local league, the Tablers, is still trying to run the enemy off his feet. The clubs here are tending to adopt the slow and careful foreign style, but lack the skill to get away with that type of soccer.

Four Southwestern Illinois High School Conference basketball games are scheduled tonight, bringing Belleville and Granite City, present leaders of the race, into action in the feature games.

The schedule follows: Granite City at Collinsville, East St. Louis at Belleville, Edwardsville at Wood River, Alton at Jerseyville.

A. A. U. SANCTION NOT SOUGHT FOR HANDBALL MEET

Participants Who Are Reg- istrants in Amateur Body May Jeopardize Their Memberships.

By Damon Kerby.

The St. Louis Handball Association will not apply for sanction of the Western A. A. U. for its tournament starting Jan. 20, and as a result, if a player registered with the Western A. A. U. competes he will be liable to such punishment as that organization sees fit, it was learned today by those interested in the tournament.

Failure of the St. Louis Handball Association to apply for the sanction of the Western A. A. U. is not caused by a desire to fight that organization, and the breach is in no sense a "war," according to Walter Kammann, president of the handball association.

The association is interested only in the promotion of handball, Kammann declares, and should it apply for the sanction of the Western A. A. U., players participating would have to join the Western A. A. U. in order to participate. It is Kammann's opinion that this would keep many from competing who otherwise would take part, regardless of the small membership fee.

Seeking Big Entry List.
"We are after as large an entry list as possible," Kammann said. "Especially do we want players in the lower classifications. If we establish a rule that those participating must join some organization, no matter what one, before being allowed to take part, it follows that many will not take the trouble to do so."

Should the tournament be held under the supervision of the Municipal Association, players would not be in danger of hurting their standings with the Western A. A. U. Municipal supervision carries automatic sanction.

Will Act Independently.
The handball association will not ask that the tournament be held under the Municipal supervision, however, Kammann asserts. He maintains that as long as his organization was formed solely to promote handball, it should be given equal recognition with Municipal organizations.

Handball players not now connected with the Western A. A. U. are not affected by the ruling, as they can play and later join the Western A. A. U. if they desire to compete in the national championship event to be held later this winter in the East. Handball players who belong to the Western A. A. U., who participate would endanger their chance of participating in the national event. The two outstanding players affected would be Dr. Jack Srenco and Dr. Rich-

BILLIKENS MEET IMPROVED ROLL TEAM TONIGHT

Visitors Expected to Make Better Showing Than Earlier Contest With St. Louis U. Squad.

St. Louis University's basketball team will endeavor to continue winning streak at the expense of the Missouri School of Mines' gymnasium, tonight, when the Billikens expect to register their straight victory. The local team is undefeated.

The Miners will take the team with a much better team than the squad which lost to St. Louis in an early season game at Rolla, 42 to 13. The visiting players have since been sent through stiff workouts daily and as a result will present a more polished game. The morale of the team also is better following the improved showing in later games.

Both Rolla and the Billikens have pointed out alone for game tonight. St. Louis U. will start in Anderson's post, from the Westminster Blue Jays of St. Louis, Mo., tomorrow night for benefit of the Olympic team, while Rolla will meet Commerce at the Armory.

The Billiken lineup will be slightly changed, it is expected. It will start in Anderson's post, from the fact that Barney Oliver, star forward, is expected to return out of the game on account of cold. Anderson, usually a guard, will take Oldfield's position. Oliver, who is a better shooter, will come to the other guard position. Strong as a running mate to Anderson, with Drury at center, probably will compose the starting lineup. The game starts at 8 o'clock.

The probable lineup:
St. Louis U. Rolla
Anderson..... Oliver
Drury..... Strong

Game Will Be Changed.
"I want St. Louis soccer fans to see this Olympic squad in action after the coaches have had another month's work with the players. We will then have an object lesson in how considerably changed our game in the public parks can become under the influence of some judicious coaching."

Interest over former local players who have retired from active play in the matter of coaching, especially in the playground division. "If we get a half dozen such coaches as Jarrett, Finnegan and Amman to take charge of the players of 12 to 15 years of age, we will see some real progress in soccer here," added Tapperson.

The game for the playground division championship will be played tomorrow at Murphy Playground, Eleventh street and Cass avenue, between teams representing Sherman Park and Bluff.

Efforts are being made by Tapperson to obtain permission from Washington University athletic officials to use the university grounds and possibly the gymnasium for the Olympic squad's practice. Spectators surrounding the field handles the practice in the public parks and distracts the attention of the players.

Heidery to Join Squad.
Tom Heidery, who has played a few games at halfback for the Ben Millers, has been released by that club in order that he may try out for a place on the Olympic team. He is an amateur, having signed an amateur form when he joined the Millers, and he has never received any compensation for his play. He is therefore eligible and is offered a valuable acquisition.

Several players from Carondelet are lost to the squad through a ruling of the United States Football Association specifying that naturalized citizens are not eligible for the Olympic soccer squad. The players in question are members of the German Sports Club team.

Manager Foley of the Ben Millers announced yesterday that he had signed Vincent O'Hara, a forward, who has been starring for the St. Matthew team of the Fairground group.

The Ben Millers are scheduled to oppose the Tablers in the feature game of the St. Louis Soccer League double-header at Sportsman's Park next Sunday. The Tablers formerly owned O'Hara but released him, and now he may play against his old teammates.

OLYMPIC GAMES WILL BE SCHEDULED FOR ST. LOUIS TEAM

Heidenry, Released by Ben Millers of "Pro" League, Will Try for a Position on Squad.

By Dent McKimming.

R. W. Tapperson, director of public recreation, is so pleased by the progress made by the committee directing the selection and coaching of the local Olympic soccer squad, that he has turned his attention to formulating a program which will insure the success of the American Olympic team in competition.

"We hope to win the national competition and the right to represent America at the Olympic games," said Tapperson at a meeting of the squad at Sherman Park Community Center last night. "But, even though the St. Louis team is eliminated in an early round, we will keep the team intact and will schedule games against the Municipal League champions and later against the St. Louis Professional League champions."

"Regardless of the measure of success in the competition for the Olympic team, the coaching which the players are receiving and will continue to receive from King Finnegan, Dick Jarrett and John Amman will have a far-reaching effect on the Municipal League soccer. So far as I know, this is the first organized effort at coaching St. Louis native-born soccer players."

Heidenry, released by Ben Millers of the "Pro" League, will try for a position on the squad. He is a former professional player and has shown remarkable improvement in the general character of their game. What will be the result of another month's training?

Game Will Be Changed.
"I want St. Louis soccer fans to see this Olympic squad in action after the coaches have had another month's work with the players. We will then have an object lesson in how considerably changed our game in the public parks can become under the influence of some judicious coaching."

Interest over former local players who have retired from active play in the matter of coaching, especially in the playground division. "If we get a half dozen such coaches as Jarrett, Finnegan and Amman to take charge of the players of 12 to 15 years of age, we will see some real progress in soccer here," added Tapperson.

The game for the playground division championship will be played tomorrow at Murphy Playground, Eleventh street and Cass avenue, between teams representing Sherman Park and Bluff.

Efforts are being made by Tapperson to obtain permission from Washington University athletic officials to use the university grounds and possibly the gymnasium for the Olympic squad's practice. Spectators surrounding the field handles the practice in the public parks and distracts the attention of the players.

Heidery to Join Squad.
Tom Heidery, who has played a few games at halfback for the Ben Millers, has been released by that club in order that he may try out for a place on the Olympic team. He is an amateur, having signed an amateur form when he joined the Millers, and he has never received any compensation for his

Real Facts on the present tire
situationMICHELIN
TIRES & TUBESYou are practically certain to get more mileage by changing to MichelinBoth this year and last, written reports (secured from several thousand motorists picked at random from the great army who are trying out Michelin Tires) showed that more than 80 out of every 100 motorists who changed to Michelins secured more mileage by the change—and only 9 out of every 100 secured less mileage.This increase in mileage averages 36%Records covering millions of miles prove that Michelins go 36% farther than the average tire. That means 4000 or 5000 miles extra per tire.The finest construction thruoutOnly the best of the world's materials are used in Michelin Tires. For instance, Michelin rubber comes from selected plantations and costs 2c more per pound than the market price.
Moreover, the most advanceddesign and manufacture are employed thruout the tire. For example, Michelin has pioneered in the development of high-twist fabric; and Michelin Tires have always been made of rubber-saturated fabric, now widely advertised.You don't pay for Michelin's extra mileage.Tho they are better, Michelin Tires cost no more than standard tires. That is possible because, unlike other manufacturers, Michelin concentrates on making only one grade—the best —and thus is able to produce the highest quality more economically.Michelin Tires and Tubes
Cost No MoreThe authorized Michelin dealers listed below have unanimously agreed to offer exceptionally low prices on the entire Michelin line during the month of January, shaped Tubes are also supremeBecause Michelin Tubes are made ring-shaped, instead of being made straight like other tubes, they fit better and outlast all others. And because they are compounded with a special kind of antimony, they keep the casing as much as 20° cooler, thus increas-

ACCUSED OF EMBEZZLING RINGS AND BONDS HE WAS TO INVEST

Thomas D. O'Brien Says He Has Money Realized From Women's Valuables.

Thomas D. O'Brien, 28 years old of 5345 Page boulevard, assistant sales manager of the International Shoe Co., was arrested yesterday charged with embezzling jewelry and bonds worth $2500 from Mrs. Fannie Conkle and her daughter, Mrs. Helen Burke of 4221 Castleman avenue.

Mrs. Conkle said she gave him a $1000 bond of Morris and Co. last August, which he was to sell and re-invest in International Shoe Co. stock. Mrs. Burke said she gave him three diamond rings valued at $1650 for the same purpose. Pawn tickets indicating O'Brien had borrowed $675 on rings were found in his possession when arrested. O'Brien admitted accepting the bond and rings, but said he still had the money realized by disposing of them and was awaiting an opportunity to invest it.

THE WAY —OF— A WOMAN

—By—
Marguerite Mooers Marshall

GIVING HER THE WHAT WANTS.

It takes a movie magnate to make the holiday season even merrier for women. Because all of us are exchanging amused smiles. Over Mr. Cecil De Mille's widely announced discovery. That "public interest in sex appeal is on the wane."

If it is, then Mr. De Mille has given first notice of the fact. To the Appealing Sex!

But still other pearls of wisdom have fallen from the lips of the gentleman in Hollywood. He insists that the more intelligent type of woman.

Is supplanting the one who boasts "IT" as her only attribute.

"Drains represent distinct individuality," he benevolently reminds women.

"And when brains become of more importance than legs to a woman," she begins to cultivate personality. "That means the end of the standard, rubber stamp type of flapper."

"So common among American girls."

"The modern girl is beginning to think."

"To become more interested in mental achievement."

"Than in the latest variation of the black bottom."

Now far be it from us to deny the truth of Mr. De Mille's kind words.

In so far as they apply to women—but what about the men?

It's all very well to point out that woman's brains are more important than her legs—

But find a man that thinks so!

It's time to proclaim that woman's intelligence is more valuable than her "IT."

That the flapper ought to know something more than the black bottom—

Plenty of WOMEN agree with these sentiments.

But where do they get women, women ask.

While men continue to "hear different?"

The first thing any woman with a brain comes to understand is that she is admired in spite of it, not because of it, by nine-tenths of the men she knows.

But what really interests them is not her intelligence.

That her ankles, her looks in a dance frock, her s. a. Her "purely feminine" qualities! Most men still want only this and nothing more from women—

For only the T. B. M. seeks the Lorelei Leo.

But even many so-called intellectuals.

Relentlessly refuse to give women credit.

For anything except physical allure.

Because we said the other day, in the column.

That a world without women would be a world without the finest mental and emotional values.

We get a most amusing four-page protest from J. Jones Atkins, self-elected champion of intellectuals.

In which he castigates that "narrow, empty and unimaginative creature, woman."

"Worthless for creative and vital endeavor."

He begs "the female of the human species."

To admit "these few simple and obvious truths" about women—as follows—

"We women need not create Beauty."

"Is it not sufficient that we ourselves are Beauty for a few short years of our life?"

"We are solely concerned, and that not reasonably, but instinctively, with the preservation of the human race."

"And do you what you may about it, our intentions are dishonorable."

"And we are full of treachery."

"We mean to first ensnare you male bipeds."

"And then empty you, as does the female mantis of her mate."

"Sidely, pleasantly and with grace and tact, perhaps."

"If you offer opposition."

"But, nevertheless, empty and devour you."

"Leaving you the contented shell."

"We follow Nature's law—"

"Those of you who can—flee!"

Now that's an eloquent and evidently sincere male conviction. Which may be summarized, "Woman is personified Sex Appeal!"

Which, despite Mr. De Mille, is what most men think!

So, though women know better. What can they do but cultivate their intelligence for their own use.

And for the pleasure of other women.

Meanwhile concealing it from men. And continuing to give their male public what it wants?

Really, you know, the late Mr. Munsey may have got his main idea from the successful modern woman—

Who is a siren when the men are looking.

And a brain when they're not—

Combining the best features of each!

THE INEVITABLE.

Congress wants no women, but Congress will have to get used to them, according to the woman member from New Jersey, Mrs. Mary T. Norton. And the formula might be expanded to include practically every male sex monopoly.

How NOT to Feed Baby

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.,
Former President of the American Medical Association.

YOUR problems in feeding your child, particularly your baby, may be very bothersome. This is because children differ widely in their tastes, in inclinations and actual food requirements. When these characteristics are very pronounced in an individual child you should consult your physician as to the best way to meet the situation. Take it by and large, however, the general food habits of an average intelligent people are the best guides for the diet of that people. In accordance to the natural laws of evolution, particularly to the law of adjustment to environment, people in general eat what they ought to eat. There is, however, much to do in the matter of one's diet, and especially in the baby's diet.

Many ill-balanced special foods happen to do well for some babies because the babies in question have something peculiar the matter with them. For instance, an infant who has had milk with too much cream in it and has become intolerant to fat may do very well for a time on a malted milk containing practically no fat but a very large amount of malt sugar. Much trouble is caused by people supposing that similar food results will follow its use with every baby.

Animal experiments have taught us much. They have demonstrated especially that the results of faulty feeding may take years, sometimes generations, to show themselves.

The human organism has wonderful powers of compensation. It will resist the effects of bad feeding for a long time, but not forever. Unfortunately, a baby does not always hoist the danger signal at once. It does not show the symptoms of scurvy for three or four months after a diet deficient in vitamin C has been commenced.

A prevalent and indefensible habit with many mothers is to delay giving fruit juice until after the third month. If there is one period more than another in which an infant, especially a premature infant, requires fruit juice, it is during the first three months.

Children fed on whole milk or unmodified dried milk sometimes appear to do well, but they all too generally acquire the habit of secreting an immense amount of acid in the stomach in order to deal with the heavy curd thrown down by cow's milk, and suffer after life from this upset of digestive balance.

Food is not simply fuel. A machine requires, in addition to fuel, cleaning, lubricating, igniting, carburization and many other processes. The food of the human body must have in it the material with which analogous processes can be performed.

In milk, which is a complete and perfect food, for most infants and grown-ups, there are not only the three different classes of fuel, but at least 37 other elements. All of them are of equal importance. Among them are iodine, lecithin, cholesterol and iron. It is legitimate to infer that the balance of these elements which is suitable for a calf will not be suitable for a baby. It is possible to modify the fuel part of cow's milk to make it practically identical with the fuel part of breast milk, but it is impossible to do more. This is an explanation of some of the shortcomings of modified cow's milk in infant feeding. Many mothers and all infant welfare workers know now that the indigestible curd must be watered down to the point of tolerance. The fuel factors (protein, fat and carbohydrate) must be balanced up to correspond with human milk. They know, too, that vitamins must be added. But they make a mistake in thinking that when this has been done a perfect food has been provided for any baby.

Make Them Fit.

If the candles are just what you want, yet a little thick for your sticks, buy them anyway and make them fit. Put about an inch of water in a saucepan and place on the stove. Hold the thick end of the candle in this for a minute. Then with a piece of cloth twist the end around until it is small enough to fit into the holder.

Shadow Visits the Barn

They gain the most who boldly seek.
It doesn't pay to be too meek.

—Shadow the Weasel.

Shadow the Weasel is not one to waste time. He was angry. He was angry clear through because Black Pussy prevented him from poking his nose into a certain hole in the stone wall. Black Pussy was watching that hole in the hope that Striped Chipmunk would come out of it, and she refused to leave it for Shadow. But Shadow didn't propose to waste any time just because he couldn't look into that particular hole.

"It's only one hole, and what's one hole among so many?" said Shadow to himself. "It might be the right hole, but the chances are that it isn't. It would be silly of me to wait around waiting for that cat to leave."

But just then he saw Farmer Brown's Boy walking over toward the henyard.

He had been enough for such a little fellow as Shadow, but it wasn't. It simply filled him with hot desire to catch another. The desire to hunt and kill tingled through every vein of him.

Presently Shadow discovered a three-quarters grown rat. He was more than twice as big as Shadow. He was a rat without experience, or he wouldn't have stopped and shown his teeth at Shadow. Had he been an old rat he would have taken to his heels and run for his life. But he was a young rat. This was his first sight of Shadow the Weasel. He guessed who it was because he had been told about Shadow. At first he stopped out of curiosity, just to see what Shadow looked like. Then, seeing how much smaller Shadow was than he himself, he said to himself, "Pooh! Why should I be afraid of that little fellow? I'll show him my teeth and scare him half to death."

So the foolish young rat showed Shadow his teeth, and that was the last thing he ever did do. He didn't even have time to feel frightened. No, sir, he didn't even have time to be frightened. You know no one can move more quickly than Shadow the Weasel. It is difficult to believe that anyone can move as quickly as he can. So, almost before he was through boasting to himself, the young rat was no more and Shadow was on his way looking for more trouble. I guess it is a mistake to say that he was looking for trouble. He wasn't looking for trouble. Instead, he was taking trouble to others.

TIPS FOR MEN

By Helen Rowland

JUST AS GOOD AS
The way to a man's heart is not through his vanity. And the path to his affection.

The gentle art of flattering a man in suitable forms of taming, and sometimes in the U. S. A. or Universal Sex-Appeal.

Never flatter a man by showing jealousy, by calling him up, calling him down, by flattery. That is flattery him too. He should waste himself on a little too.

Say it with WORDS—not with acts.

Say it with WORDS and you can go whether you lay it on delicately with a trowel, or on with a trowel, or on with admiration, and what stops over will be.

When it comes to swallowing overblown, every man has the capacity of a woman!

Of course, every man has his pet. There are certain stock tributes that all men will relish.

Tell him that he is "different." Tell him that he is different! Tell him that his life would make a book. Tell him that he knows his own mind; that he knows his own sense of humor.

Tell him that he has good shoulders, that his taste in cravats; never fail to mention his new socks and the smart member, that even Achilles, had one vul in his FOOT.

But why go on? You've got a star on your chest and runs over under a warm variations with which to keep the fire.

But never let ANY man suspect that the moment he gets an inkling that he is trying to prove it to ANOTHER woman.

And never, by any chance let him see him. Because every man loves to be flattered!

3. When an escort assists you in putting your coat on after dinner, do you rise to put it on or do you remain seated and just get up to take it away?

4. When served French lamb chops which have the little paper ties on the end, do you remove them or leave them on while you eat the chop?

5. When eating baked potatoes at home or in a restaurant, do you remove them from their skins or do you eat them from the skins? I have a friend who always removes them from the skins and eats them that way.

6. When peas are served in individual dishes, do you eat them with a fork or with a spoon?

7. When eating fruit cocktail, do you eat it with a fork?

8. Very interesting questions, every one of them, and questions on which we all have our puzzled moments.

1. It really is proper for a lady to remove her coat in a restaurant, since there is no sensible reason why she shouldn't, if she wishes.

2. But I do know many special-gentlemen women who, in a formal restaurant at dinner or any restaurant at luncheon, would never allow themselves the formality of removing their coats.

3. In their restaurant-manners, however, unless one insists on being so strictly conventional and as this, one may remove her coat in a restaurant and know she is perfectly "correct."

4. It gives a better appearance, think if the lady takes her seat and then slips off her coat and puts it on the back of the chair.

5. If the lady is with a gentleman, she waits until he comes to the end of her chair to help her with her coat. And I do wish that all women would remember this for it is extremely bad manners for a woman to assist to the waiter the service of helping her with her coat, both when they are in a restaurant and when they leave.

6. Again it looks better if you slip off your coat while you are seated.

7. The port little paper-frills as the dressing up of the chop are placed on the table. They are the unattractive ends of the chop. When they are removed, they are not, as the business of eating the chop, moved. And they are not, as people think, to be used to the chop while we take the fork to our fingers to eat it!

TIPS FOR MAN TAMERS

By Helen Rowland.

JUST AS GOOD AS S. A. The way to a man's heart is not through his stomach, but through his vanity. And the path to his vanity is paved with assistance.

The gentle art of flattering a man is one of the most vital and valuable forms of taming, and sometimes more powerful than the well-known U. S. A. or Universal Sex-Appeal.

Never flatter a man by showing jealousy, by hanging around his neck, by calling him up, calling him down, or showing that you missed him. That is flattering him too much; and he will soon begin to wonder why such a combination of brains, beauty and sex-appeal should waste himself on a little fool like you.

Say it with WORDS—not with actions!

Say it with WORDS and you can go as far as you like. No matter whether you lay it on delicately with a camel's hair brush or slap it on with a trowel, some of it is bound to stick. Fill him with self-estimation, and what slops over will be all yours.

When it comes to swallowing overdone compliments and diluted flattery, every man has the capacity of an ostrich. He is almost as big as a woman!

Of course, every man has his pet illusions about himself; but there are certain stock tributes that almost any man will swallow with relief.

Tell him that he is "different." All men are alike in thinking that they are different! Tell him that he should have been a writer; that his life would make a book. Tell him that he has a keen, analytical mind; that he knows his groceries; that he is sensitive; that most women don't understand him; that he has a remarkable sense of humor.

Tell him that he has good shoulders. And a strong nose. Admire his taste in cravats; never fail to compliment him on the snap of his new socks and the smart appearance of his feet. Remember, that even Achilles had one vulnerable spot—and that was in his FOOT.

But why go on? You've got a start, and once you see how a man melts and runs over under a warm fire of flattery, you can find variations with which to keep the fire going.

But never let ANY man suspect that he has SEX-APPEAL! For the moment he gets an inkling that he is a Woman-charmer, off he'll go to try to prove it to ANOTHER woman!

And never, by any chance let him suspect that you are "kidnap him. Because every man loves to be flattered—but hates to be kidnapped!

But I do know many exceedingly punctilious women who, in an informal restaurant at dinner or any restaurant at luncheon would never allow themselves the liberty of removing their coats. They preserve their formal "ensemble" in their costume as well as in their restaurant-manners! However, unless one insists on being so strictly conventional and formal as this, one may remove her coat in a restaurant and know she is perfectly "correct."

to the plate. Either is correct, if whichever way we choose is carried out neatly. Many people like the skin—and I am among 'em!—and see no reason for not eating it, if it is eaten neatly and "tidily." Your friend is correct—if the inside of the potato is removed, it should be removed with the fork, and the butter that is pressed into it is taken from the bread and butter plate with a fork.

6. Peas are eaten with a fork, unless the peas are served with juice, and in this case, of course, a spoon is used. But nowadays vegetables are not so much served with juice as they were formerly. And it is not at all good form now to serve vegetables in side dishes. These unattractive dishes, as far as correct service is concerned, went out of fashion with small "butter" "chips."

ENGLAND'S WITTY MAN WAS A HEART-WINNER

SECOND DUEL ENDED IN A SCUFFLE

HEARTBROKEN WHEN BETTY DIED

DEATH SAVED HIM FROM PRISON

By Albert Payson Terhune.

A TWENTY-ONE-YEAR-OLD Irish lad, deep in debt and with no immediate chance of earning a living, fell in love in 1772 with Betty Linley, a 16-year-old concert prima donna. It was not his first love affair, nor was it his last. But it is notable, because it led to his marrying the same girl twice and fighting two successive duels with the same man. The young hero of these double exploits was Richard Brinsley Sheridan, wittiest man in England, and destined one day to win fame as a statesman and as author of "The Rivals" and "School for Scandal."

Sheridan learned that Capt. Matthews, a notorious man-about-town, was planning to kidnap Betty Linley. Instead of thrashing Matthews or going with the story to the young lady's father or adopting any of a half dozen sane courses, Sheridan told Betty of the plot and arranged to carry her across to France, there to hide her in a convent, where she would be safe from Matthews' persecutions. The young couple accordingly eloped to the Continent. On the way an idea even more romantic than the convent plan occurred to Sheridan. He suggested that he and Betty secretly marry. They did so. Her father followed them and brought his daughter back home, turning the youthful bridegroom adrift.

Sheridan also came back to England. There, though he was no fire-eater, he got drunk enough to give him courage to fight a duel with Matthews. No one was hurt. A second sword duel followed, which ended in a pummeling match and rough-and-tumble scuffle. Sheridan was a good deal knocked about. The affair was the scandal of the hour, but did not soften Mr. Linley's heart toward the bridegroom. And Sheridan could only get a word with his 16-year-old wife now and then by disguising himself as a cabman or a liveried servant and haunting the doorways of houses where she was a guest. It was not until a whole year of this sort of thing had gone on that Linley relented, when he gave his consent and Sheridan and Betty were married a second time—on this occasion publicly.

Then began a married life which lasted 19 years, and during which Betty was not always happy. Not only was Sheridan forever in need of ready money and in danger of arrest for debt, but his wit and good looks won him the smiles of many beautiful women. And when those smiles were flashed upon him it is not on record that he looked the other way. Indeed, in several instances it is on record that he did not.

Mary Robinson, for instance, one of the foremost actresses of her day, became profoundly smitten with Sheridan and wrote pages in praise of him in her autobiography. But when the Prince of Wales (afterward George IV) deigned to notice her she promptly forgot all about Sheridan. To make matters worse, even the Prince speedily forgot all about her, and she consoled herself by falling in love with Col. Tarleton, the British officer who scoured South Carolina during the Revolutionary War.

In spite of his fickleness Sheridan was heart-broken when Betty died. "I have seen him," writes a friend, "night after night sit and cry like a child. I have never beheld more poignant grief." But there were plenty of women eager to console the bereft husband. By this time he was not only a famous playwright and theatrical manager but one of England's most brilliant statesmen. Incidentally, he was still deep in debt, with no hope of getting out of it. Indeed, only the fact that he was exempt, as a Member of Parliament, kept him from the debtors' prison.

In 1795 Sheridan laid siege to the heart of a 20-year-old girl, Esther Jane Ogle by name. He was a quarter century older than she. But his powers of fascination enabled him to win her from young and richer suitors. They were married—and were too much alike to be happy together. Each was extravagant, selfish, careless, thriftless. They spent money like water. And it was usually money they did not possess. Each accused the other of neglect in financial management. The wife was bitter in her anger at Sheridan's shiftlessness, and he bore her silly reproaches as with those of a cross child. When, during his absence from home, she forgot for a single day to write to him he would go half mad with disappointment. And she adored him. She wrote once:

"I hate everything you hate and love everything you love. You are better than anything on earth! And how well I love you!"

The mature heart-breaker continued to flirt until old age gripped him. He died in poverty, his parliamentary seat gone, his fame obscured, his host of friends and sweethearts scattered. As he lay dying the officers of the law were waiting outside his room to carry him to prison for debt.

BETTER COOKING

By Nancy Dorris

TONIGHT'S dessert will indeed be different, providing there is an excess of jelled cranberries in the icebox. Or, you feel equal to preparing fresh berries for the occasion.

We're modern enough, of course, to give the tart red berry from the Cape Cod bogs a chance to shine at some other meal than the traditional turkey spurge. So here's the way to make a new pastry.

Cranberry Meringue Tarts.
Two or three cups jelled cranberries.
Tablespoon flour.

Two eggs.
Large tablespoon butter.
One-fourth teaspoon vanilla.
Two to four tablespoons powdered sugar.

Pastry for tart shells.
In the event that the cranberry sauce or jelly is exhausted, the directions for preparing the necessary article follows:
One and one-half cups of sugar.
Two cups cranberries.
Half cup water.

Cook the sugar and water together five minutes to make syrup. Add the washed and picked-over berries; cover and cook gently until they pop. Take from the fire and cool slightly.

Now we are ready to continue with our Different Dessert. Collect the tools and utensils for the work—saucepan, measuring cup, tablespoon, teaspoon, bowl, egg whip, clock, rolling pin, pastry board, knife, for cutter, pastry tins.

Mix the egg yolks with the flour in a saucepan; thin with three tablespoons of cranberry juice (heat the jelled cranberries to make this juice if you are using those from the icebox). Then add the jelled cranberries two to three cups, according to your taste. Simmer the mixture for three minutes over a gentle flame. Stir in the butter; remove from the fire and cool. Light the oven.

A roll of the Incomparable Marshall pastry is in the icebox for just such an emergency as pie for dinner, isn't it? Well, flour the board; cut an inch slice from the roll of pastry and lightly make thin with the rolling pin. Cut into rounds with a cutter and fit into the party tins, trimming and pinching the edge into a fluted-like top. Prick the pastry to make it keep its shape during baking.

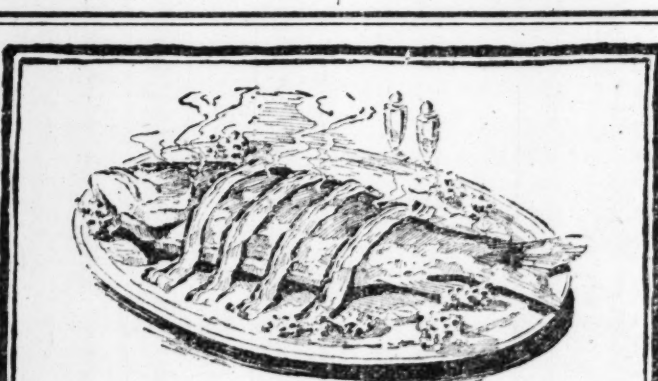

Your oven should be very hot by this time. The thermometer registers 300 degrees Fahrenheit. Put the pastry into the oven, where it should remain 10 to 20 minutes, depending upon the size of the shells. When a nice brown, they are ready for the filling. Reduce the oven heat.

Place a heaping tablespoon, more or less to suit your idea of a perfect filling, in each baked shell. And prepare the meringue by whipping the two egg whites very stiff and adding one at a time two to four tablespoons of powdered sugar. Pile upon the tarts and bake in a slow oven (300 degrees) 10 to 20 minutes or until a beautiful, delicate brown. Serve hot or cold.

You will be interested in another leaflet: The Decorative Salad! No other course permits as free a role to the artistic talent as the salad. And why not be as artistic as we long to be in our culinary efforts? So, drop your stamped, self-addressed envelope in the letter box and be rewarded with some salad suggestions.

An Ideal Garnish

How bacon does add to the appearance and flavor of other foods! One would hardly think of serving fish, or shad roe, or calves' liver, without it. It makes Century steaks the popular dish that they are. And what a rich, appetizing flavor results when bacon is cooked with string beans and other vegetables.

There is "bacon" and "bacon," of course. To always be sure of getting the very best on the market, simply ask for "Independent Bacon" each time. This well-known brand, established 24 years ago, is sold by over two thousand markets and groceries in and around St. Louis.

China Mothers Like Better Babies Clinic

DRESSED in their best, Chinese mothers flock to the Better Babies Clinic of the Y. M. C. A. in Tsinan, plainly showing that they regard it as a highly important occasion. "The mothers are eager to bring their children regularly and have the doctor assure them that they are in good health," says Miss Ruth Hoople of Brooklyn, N. Y., who is in charge. "They prefer this rather than wait for them to become ill. The examinations over, our clinic afternoon becomes a social occasion. Mothers drink tea and compare one another's children."

Health is given an important role in educational work among the Chinese children as well as adults. and they are taught that germs and dirt are the foes to combat. In a recent playlet the children were given fly swatters to chase other children dressed as black imps away from food and out of the house.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

THEY watched him climb till he reached the broad platform that fronted the safe door. Then they saw him pull a paper from his pocket and examine it. He looked at it carefully, then twisted the dial cautiously till one by one the desired letters came opposite the pointer. Then he twisted the huge handle of the safe. He twisted and pulled, but the steel door did not move. They saw him stoop and examine the dial again, and again he seized the handle with the same result. A dozen times he went through the same process, and a dozen times the unyielding door resisted his efforts. Then he came clattering down the steps, and almost reeled across the floor of the hall to the little group. His eyes burnt with an unearthly light, his face was pallid, and the perspiration lay thick upon his forehead.

"The word!" he gasped. "It's the wrong word."

Angel did not answer him.

"I have tested it a dozen times," cried the lawyer, almost beside himself, "and it has failed."

"Shall I try?" asked Angel.

"No, no!" the man hissed. "By Heaven, no! I will try again. One of the letters is wrong; there are two meanings to some of the symbols."

He turned and remounted the stairs.

"The man is suffering," said Jimmy in an undertone.

"Let him suffer," said Angel, a hard look in his eyes. "He will suffer more before he gets outside. Let the men in, Jimmy, he's up again. Let me find the word this time—and take Miss Kent away as soon as the trouble starts."

The girl saw the sudden mask of hardness that had come over Angel's face, saw him slip off his overcoat, and heard the creaking of boots in the hall outside. The pleasant, flippant man of the world was gone, and the remorseless police officer, inscrutable as doom, had taken his place. It was a new Angel she saw, and she drew closer to Jimmy.

An exultant shout from the man at the safe made her raise her eyes. With a flutter at her heart, she saw the ponderous steel door swing slowly open.

Then from the man came a cry that was like the snarl of some wild beast.

"Empty," he roared.

He stood staring and dumb; then he flung himself into the great steel room, and they heard his voice reverberating hollowly. Again he came to the platform holding in his hand a white envelope. Blindly he blundered down the stairs again, and they could hear his heavy breathing.

"Empty!" His grating voice rose to a scream. "Nothing but this!" He held the envelope out, then tore it open.

It contained only a few words—

"Received on behalf of Miss Katherine: Kent the contents of this safe."

"(Signed) JAMES CAVENTISH STANNARD, PART. CHRISTOPHER ANGEL."

Tazed and bewildered, the lawyer read the paper, then looked from one to the other.

"So it was you," he said.

Angel nodded curtly.

"You?" said Spedding again.

"Yes."

"You have robbed the safe—you—a police officer?"

"Yes," said Angel, not removing his eyes from the man. He motioned to Jimmy, and Jimmy, with a whispered word to the girl, led her to the door. Behind him, as he returned to Angel's side, came six plain-clothes officers.

"So you think you've got me, do you?" breathed Spedding.

"I don't think," said Angel. "I know."

"If you know so much, do you know how near to death you are?"

"That also I know," said Angel's voice. "I'm all the more certain of my danger since I have seen your hat."

The lawyer did not speak.

"I mean," Angel went on calmly, "since I saw the hat that you put down on a dusty table in my chambers—when you murdered Connor."

"Oh, you found him, did you?" "I would not," said Spedding without emotion. "Then he heard a faint metallic click, and leapt back with his hand in his pocket.

But Jimmy's pistol covered him. He paused irresolutely for one moment; then, six men flung themselves upon him, and he went to the ground fighting. Pandemonium, he rose, his nonchalant self, with the full measure of his plant as Moses, parading (Fruit of Paradise) and Musa sapientum (Fruit of Knowledge).

The common name, banana, was adopted from the language of an African Congo tribe, and first came into use during the sixteenth century. Prior to that time the fruit was called "apple of Paradise" and "Adam's fig." The name "banana" seems to have been borne for a long period by the fruit, which was eaten raw. The term "plantain" was given to a variety which though closely related to the banana is edible only after being cooked.

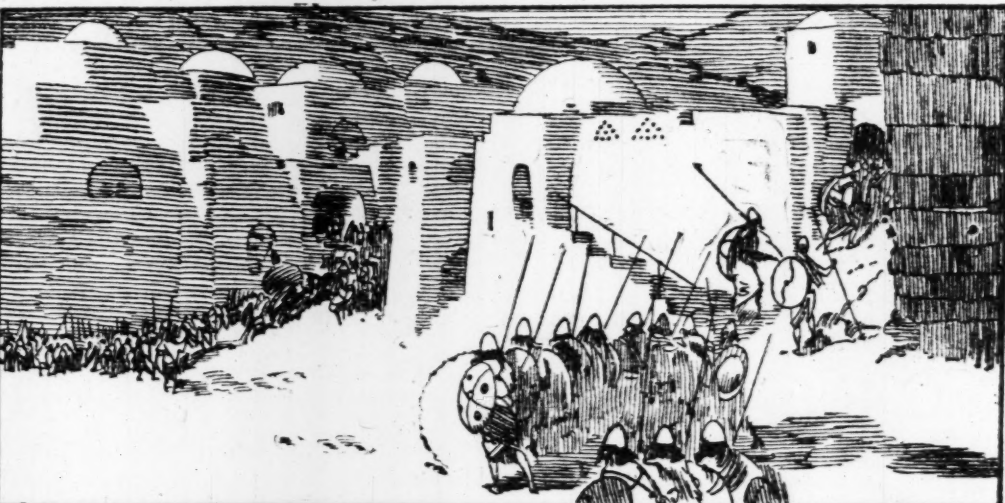

Closely guarded, he walked to the door. He passed Katherine standing in the vestibule, and she shrank on one side, which amused

The Greatest Story in the World—By Kor

The Bible in Pictures

And from the wilderness they went to Mattanah; and from Mattanah to Nahaliel; and from Nahaliel to Bamoth; and from Bamoth in the valley, that is in the country of Moab, to the top of Pisgah, which looketh toward Jeshimon. And Israel sent messengers unto Sihon, king of the Amorites, saying, Let me pass through thy lands: we will not turn into the fields, or into the vineyards; we will not drink of the waters of the well; but we will go along by the king's high way, until we be past thy borders. And Sihon would not suffer Israel to pass through his border; but Sihon gathered all his people together, and went out against Israel into the wilderness; and he came to Jahaz, and fought against Israel. And Israel smote him with the edge of the sword, and possessed his land from Arnon unto Jabbok, even unto the children of Ammon; for the border of the children of Ammon was strong. And Israel took all these cities of the Amorites, in Heshbon and in all the villages thereof.

This concludes the series of Bible pictures drawn by artist Kor.

3 SHELTONS GET 10 YEARS TO LIFE FOR BANK HOLDUP

Jury Out 11 Hours 40 Minutes in Convicting Gangster Brothers of Kinkaid (Ill.) Robbery.

17 BALLOTS TAKEN, VOTE ONCE 8 TO 4

Two Defendants Relied on East St. Louis Police Blotter Alibi Which State Said Was Faked.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
TAYLORVILLE, Ill., Jan. 7.—Carl, Earl and Bernie Shelton, gangster brothers, today were found guilty of robbery with a deadly weapon in the holdup of the Kinkaid Trust & Savings Bank Sept. 27, 1924, and their sentence fixed under the statutes at from 10 years to life imprisonment in the penitentiary.

The jury reached its verdict after 11 hours and 40 minutes of deliberation.

Seventeen ballots were taken. The vote stood 8 to 4 for conviction when the jury was locked up for the night at 1 a. m. today. Succeeding ballots today brought the vote to 10 to 2 for conviction at noon today and a unanimous verdict was reached at 2:50 p. m.

Five hours of closing argument yesterday afternoon, pressed Judge Wright's charge to the jury.

Alibi Witnesses Assailed.
The East St. Louis policemen—Lieut. Thomas F. O'Brien and Detective Sergeant Floyd (Buster) Omba and Ray Cashell—who came here and testified Wednesday for the Sheltons, were denounced as associates of gangsters and unfit to be in a police department in the state's closing argument.

"I am deeply concerned for the residents of East St. Louis when they must depend on such officers for protection," said State Attorney Preth. "If the high officers of their police department are of the character of the men we have seen here, what must be said of the patrolmen or those who have not attained the rank of lieutenant or sergeant?"

Preth declared the police officers had lied. He exhibited the police blotter of the East St. Louis Police Department showing the records of arrests on Sept. 27, 1924.

He said the blotter, calling attention of the jury to what he termed the "palpable falsification" of entries to bolster up a "crooked alibi for the Sheltons."

Says Carl Wrote Names.
"Carl Shelton made those entries," Preth charged. "The handwriting is very similar to his acknowledged signature on documents in this case. He was in St. Louis Tuesday night and falsified that record."

Handwriting expert from Springfield, appearing for the State yesterday, said the handwriting on the blotter and the acknowledged signature of Carl Shelton were either by the same hand or the entries on the blotter were made by a writer who had Shelton's signature before him when he made them.

As was told yesterday in the Post-Dispatch, the police blotter, found in a volume recording all arrests made in East St. Louis in 1924, was produced into court under a defense subpoena. It carried the names of Bernie and Earl Shelton and the alleged arrest of two men at 2:40 a. m., Sept. 27, 1924, by Patrolmen Grimes and Hobbs. According to the blotter they were held 14 hours, after which they were discharged, the record showed, by order of the Chief of Police, who at that time was John J. Barry. The Kinkaid bank was robbed at 9:15 a. m. of that day, and if the record of the police blotter were true, Earl and Bernie Shelton could not have been at Kinkaid, 90 miles away.

Lieut. O'Brien and Sgt. Omba and Cashell testified, after refreshing their memory from the blotter, that they saw the two defendants in the East St. Louis jail that date.

But the page had been torn out of the blotter and pasted back again. It looked like a fresh tear. The names of the two Sheltons and other names that followed were on the blotter, Smith, Jones and Brown, appeared to have been recently written, for the ink contained on Page 3, Column 2.
